Food costs level off, energy prices jump

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a leveling off in food costs, consumer prices jumped five-tenths of a per cent last month, driven upward by a sharp increase in the cost of gasoline and other energy products, the government said today.

The June increase follows hikes of six-tenths of a per cent in May and four-tenths of a per cent in April, closing out the second quarter with inflation rising at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 6.1 per cent.

That is about what Ford administration economists have considered in the past to be the underlying inflation rate in the economy.

The increase of grocery prices slowed in June, rising only two-tenths of a per cent after jumping one per cent in May and six-tenths of a per cent in April, the Labor Department said.

However, the department said the improvement was offset by sharp increases in the costs of a broad range of energy products, including gasoline, motor oil, fuel oil, coal, natural gas and electricity.

Over-all, energy prices were up 1.9 per cent in June, accounting for almost a third of the month's increase in the department's Consumer Price Index.

Workers were hurt as well by a June decline in average weekly hours on the job.

The Labor Department said the decline, amounting to six-tenths of a per cent, plus the rise in retail prices resulted in a decline of one per cent in gross weekly earnings.

Over all, consumer prices last month were 5.9 per cent more than they were during the same month a year ago.

In an insi82p,g).Tuesday, John Kendrick, the Commerce Department's chief economist, said: "It doesn't look as if there will an acceleration in price inflation at least for the next several months, because of the favorable farm and food prospects.

For the month of June, the Consumer Price Index stood at 170.1. That means that the same variety of goods and services that cost $100 in 1967 cost $170.10 in June.

The five-tenths of a per cent increase in the index last month was adjusted to account for normal seasonal influences.

The slowdown n the increase of grocery prices reflected declines in the cost of beef and pork as well as fruit and vegetables. Prices for other foods, including eggs, coffee, bakery products, poultry and dairy goods increased.

A sampling of prices showed that beef declined four-tenths of a per cent following a jump of 3.9 per cent in May. Pork declined 1.5 per cent. Coffee prices jumped 4.9 per cent, while poultry climbed 3.5 per cent.

1 killed, 5 hurt

A Chicago man was killed and five persons received injuries in three area traffic accidents Tuesday and early today, according to the highway patrol.

The death was the 59th on southeast Missouri roads this year, compared to 52 at the same time last year.

Cornell Nicholas Johnson, 26, was killed in a two-vehicle accident at 6:05 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 60 one mile west of the Mississippi River bridge in Mississippi County.

The accident occurred when an eastbound motorcycle, driven by Luis Tayleor, 40, of Gary, Ind., hit a slick spot on a curve, slid sideways and fell to the pavement. A motorcycle driven by Johnson struck the Tayleor motorcycle, and Johnson was thrown into a ditch and killed instantly.

His body was taken to McMikle Funeral Home in Charleston.

Tayleor suffered moderate injuries, and a passenger on the Johnson motorcycle, Teresa Lenora Roberts, 19, of Chicago, received minor injuries. Both were taken to PADCO Community Hospital in Cairo, Ill.

Two persons were injured in a three-vehicle accident at 11:55 a.m. Tuesday at the intersection of Highways 62 and 53 and Route WW near Campbell.

The accident occurred when a westbound car driven by Charlotte K. Potts, 26, of Greenway, Ark., Route One failed to stop at a stop sign and was struck in the left side by a northbound pickup truck driven

3 arrested for damaging stolen tractors

CHARLESTON — Two 14-year-old boys from Wyatt and a 14-year-old boy from Bird's Point were arrested Monday in connection with the theft Sunday of three tractors with eight-row cultivators attached which were heavily damaged during an alleged joy ride by the youths.

The farm equipment belongs to Guy and Tom Crawford of Wyatt and was taken from a farm shed located about two miles east of Wyatt.

Mississippi County Deputy Sheriff Robert Smith, who investigated and made the arrest along with Juvenile Officer Gordon Galemore, said two of the cultivators had been damaged beyond repair.

Four hundred gallons of Therbicide were lost when holes were knocked in two 200-gallon tanks mounted on one of the tractors. One tractor tire had been busted.

Smith said the damage, including the loss of the farm chemical, was estimated between $3,000 to $4,000.

The boys reportedly have admitted taking a tractor owned by Tom Crawford for a joy ride about a week ago. The tractor received minor damage. They also reportedly admitted joy riding on a tractor that belonged to Jim Moreton, which was not damaged.

3 held in auto thefts

CHARLESTON — A rural East Prairie man and two juveniles have been arrested for auto theft by the Missouri State Highway Patrol and Mississippi County Sheriff's Department officers.

John Wayne Davis, 23, of East Prairie Star Route, who was arrested Monday by Highway Patrol Trooper Jerry Crismon, has been charged with two counts of auto theft and is in custody under $2,500 bond.

Tuesday morning, Sheriff's Deputies Robert Smith and Jack Ivie and Bennie Rapert, a special investigator for the highway patrol, arrested a 15- year-old East Prairie boy and a 16-year - old boy who lives on East Prairie Star Route.

The three are accused of stealing a pickup truck belonging to Gilbert Rundell of East Prairie on June 23 and a pickup truck with a camper attached owned by Leroy Givens of East Prairie earlier this month.

Deputy Smith said the truck had been stripped of the motors, the transmission removed from one and the rear end assembly from the other, allegedly for repairs to an old car.

The trucks had been burned and later sold for junk at a Sikeston junk yard.

3 rezoning requests okayed

The Planning and Zoning Commission recommended rezoning of three tracts of land following public hearings Tuesday night.

The most controversial request was submitted by Robert S. Matthews for the rezoning of 6.19 acres of land on the east side of North Main Street north of Sikes Avenue from single-family to commercial.

Matthews said the family intended to sell property for the construction of professional offices.

Several adjacent property owners present at the hearing indicated they wanted some assurance that only professional offices would be put on the land. They said they did not want retail outlets there, for fear they would lower the value of their property.

Matthews said he was willing to give written assurances that the property would not be used for that purpose.

City Manager Charles Church suggested that the property be rezoned to multiple-family, which would allow professional offices but not retail establishments.

When both Matthews and the property owners said such an arrangement was satisfactory, the commission gave its approval to the rezoning.

Other rezonings recommended by the commission were a lot on the corner of Tanner and Applegate streets, from single-family to multiple-family to permit the construction of apartments, and two lots south of Highway 60 in the Lizabeth Addition, from single-family to commercial.

In other action, the commission tabled consideration of an ordinance to require a 25-foot setback for all apartment complexes.

The commission wants the ordinance rewritten to state that the 25-foot setback would be required only where the back of an apartment abuts the side yard of the adjacent property.

The commission also tabled a proposal which would have changed the square-footage requirements for apartments built on commercially zoned land.

City ordinance now requires 1,000 square feet per apartment, but the change would require 2,000 square feet for one-bedroom and 3,000 for two-

He told police he was headed north on North Ranney Street when some papers fell from the seat to the floorboard of his vehicle. He said he reached down to pick them up and struck the back of a car parked on the side of the street.

Stolen car rams store wall

BELL CITY — A 1971 Pontiac car was stolen sometime Tuesday night from Leroy McIntyre Service Station, driven around the corner and into Bell City Store, causing an undetermined amount of damage.

Max Bollinger, owner of the store, was informed of the incident at 5:30 a.m. today. The Stoddard County Sheriff's Department did not know the owner of the car or what time the theft took place.

Mrs. Bollinger said that when she and Bollinger arrived at the store this morning the car was still sticking in the wall, the front part of it in the store, with concrete blocks around and on it.

"It knocked in quite a bit of wall, knocked out a big window, a big hole in the back of the store," she said. A fender on the car was rolled up quite a bit and the front was also damaged.

She said it is feared that when the wall is fixed, the roof may cave in, causing even more damage.

Their insurance company will survey the damage this afternoon.

The wall was made of concrete blocks, which were knocked inside the store and some fell on top of the car.

The car had been parked across the street at the service station where it was being worked on. The car would run, but it was not completely repaired.

Jaycees endorse DeKalb bond issue

The Sikeston Jaycees unanimously passed a resolution in support of DeKalb AgResearch Inc's $2.5 million revenue bond issue, which is to go before city voters in the Aug. 3 primary election.

According to Jack Bloomer, manager of the DeKalb facility in Sikeston, the vond issue will not in any way increase taxes and will not obligate the Sikeston taxpayer.

Bloomer said the reason for DeKalb's request for industrial revenue bonds is to finance the construction of a facility that will employ up to 15 people fulltime and 500 to 1,000 during the summer. It is estimated that the total annual payroll will eventually approach $2 million and he project will provide summer work for a large number of Sikeston's young people.

Also pointing out that the DeKalb project will help area farmers, Bloomer said that about 2,000 acres of seed corn are being produced by area farmers on a contract basis for DeKalb this year. Seed corn production offers farmers the advantages of an additional cash crop and higher returns per acre. The Sikeston project, when completed, will have the capacity to process 6,000 acres of seed corn and will help to diversify this area's agricultural production.

The DeKalb project is a hybrid seed corn production and processing facility used for husking, sorting, drying, and shelling. Processing will include cleaning, sizing, and fungicide treatment. Seed is then warehoused and shipped to dealers.

$114,000 suit filed in fatal accident

BENTON — Damages totaling $114,000 are sought by J.A. Wylie in a two-count suit filed Monday in Scott County Circuit Court against William M. Shell, a minor, in connection with a July 1 traffic accident in Sikeston.

The suit states that one July 1 Sarah Wylie, deceased wife of J.A. Wylie, was driving a car from the north drive of Missouri Delta Community Hospital onto North Main Street in Sikeston and was near the center line of the four-lane when the Shell youth carelessly and negligently permitted his northbound car to collide with the Wylie vehicle.

As a result of the collison, the suit says Mrs. Wylie received severe injuries, for which she was hospitalized and died a few hours later.

The suit contends that Shell was careless and negligent in that he operated his vehicle in excess of the speed limit in violation of an ordinance of the City of Sikeston, that he failed to slacken his speed, swerve or stop his car in order to avoid the collision and that he carelessly and negligently failed to keep his vehicle in control.

The suit asks that a guardian ad litem be appointed to represent Shell in court.

Count one of the suit states that, as a direct result of Shell's negligence, Wylie has been and will be deprived of the love, care and affection of his wife and has been forced to spend large sums of money for medical, hospital and funeral bills. Count one asks for a judgment of $110,000.

Count two realleges the charges in count one and seeks payment for damages to the car driven by Mrs. Wylie, which had a reasonable market value of $3,400 prior to the collision and was valued at $100 afterward.

It further states that the vehicle has been out of use with a resultant loss of $700, and seeks a total of $4,000 for property damages.

A CB radio valued at $149 was taken from a pickup truck belonging to John Abernathy, 217 Luther St., while the truck was parked at TG&Y Tuesday.

Tony Shuffit, 304 Moore Ave., told police that a CB antenna valued at $30 was taken from his car between Saturday and Monday while the car was parked at his home.

Lorenzo Harris, 624 Moore Ave., told police that some one took two six-inch speakers, a wrench and two cans of motor oil valued at $84 from his car while it was parked at Reynolds Garage on South Main Street between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday.

$114,000 suit filed in fatal accident

BENTON — Damages totaling $114,000 are sought by J.A. Wylie in a two-count suit filed Monday in Scott County Circuit Court against William M. Shell, a minor, in connection with a July 1 traffic accident in Sikeston.

The suit states that one July 1 Sarah Wylie, deceased wife of J.A. Wylie, was driving a car from the north drive of Missouri Delta Community Hospital onto North Main Street in Sikeston and was near the center line of the four-lane when the Shell youth carelessly and negligently permitted his northbound car to collide with the Wylie vehicle.

As a result of the collison, the suit says Mrs. Wylie received severe injuries, for which she was hospitalized and died a few hours later.

The suit contends that Shell was careless and negligent in that he operated his vehicle in excess of the speed limit in violation of an ordinance of the City of Sikeston, that he failed to slacken his speed, swerve or stop his car in order to avoid the collision and that he carelessly and negligently failed to keep his vehicle in control.

The suit asks that a guardian ad litem be appointed to represent Shell in court.

Count one of the suit states that, as a direct result of Shell's negligence, Wylie has been and will be deprived of the love, care and affection of his wife and has been forced to spend large sums of money for medical, hospital and funeral bills. Count one asks for a judgment of $110,000.

Count two realleges the charges in count one and seeks payment for damages to the car driven by Mrs. Wylie, which had a reasonable market value of $3,400 prior to the collision and was valued at $100 afterward.

It further states that the vehicle has been out of use with a resultant loss of $700, and seeks a total of $4,000 for property damages.

It is the contention of the learned doctor on the Rand staff that "after some alcoholics are treated, they can resume drinking alcohol with no more danger of relapse than if they abstained."

To this, Congressman Mills vigorously disagrees. He declares that he doesn't know of a single case of an alcoholic who was able to begin drinking again without absolutely disastrous results. And Mr. Mills ought to know. His own bout with alcoholism cost him his position as Chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee. He underwent months of treatment in a hospital for alcoholism, and has since been speaking before audiences all across the United States on the subject of alcoholic abuse and has been very active in alcoholic rehabilitation work.

"I know enough about the illness," he told the press, "to recognize the dangers of any encouragement based upon so-called 'scientific research' that would lead them to believe that there is a permanent cure for alcoholism. Such reports are liable to cause a lot of alcoholics to go back and take a drink.

"Perhaps those who conducted the study ... confused alcoholics with heavy drinkers," he said. "The only way alcoholism can be 'cured' is through total abstinence. This has been proven time and time again by people who are alcoholics and attempted to drink again."

At least two thoughts come to mind in this debate. First, if anyone is to gamble as to which of the two gentlemen is right, it seems to us that the safest place to put your bet is with Mr. Mills. And, secondly, we can't understand why the Rand Corporation should feel it their mission to encourage anyone to drink. Hard liquor is good stuff for everyone, and not just alcoholics, to avoid.

P.S. TO THE NEWS

QUEMOY

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

The old adage that coming events cast their shadows before them explains the announcement by the Ford administration that the United States is pulling its military advisers out of the Nationalist Chinese islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

This move is undoubtedly planned by our State Department as the forerunner of withdrawal of recognition from Taiwan after the November presidential election, in abject appeasement of the Chinese Reds.

The little island of Quemoy is freedom's farthest outpost in the Pacific, located just a little more than a mile off the coast of Red China. There, through binoculars, you can look out from the land of the free and get a long, close view of the home of the slave. You can even watch the Red soldiers patrolling the beaches of Mainland China.

One must either visit Quemoy or study the map to realize how this tiny island nestles into the shoreline and is surrounded on three sides by Mainland China. Quemoy is sometimes called the cork in the bottle of Amoy. In order to get there, you must make a hazardous flight in a plane, flying only about 500 feet above the sea to avoid Red China's radar.

Every part of the island is within range of Red artillery fire. On every odd-numbered day for the last decade, the Red Chinese have shelled Quemoy with artillery fire. For the last few years, the shells have been filled with propaganda leaflets instead of explosives, and only a direct hit is fatal.

Quemoy is completely built as an underground and camouflaged community. The impressive civic auditorium is carved out of solid rock, and has natural underground air conditioning and perfect natural acoustics. It can be transformed into a hospital in a few hours.

For 25 years, the Red China lobby in the United States has been insisting that Quemoy is indefensible and should be abandoned to Mainland China.

Red China devotees in the United States argue that the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu should belong to whomever controls Mainland China. That is about like saying that the offshore islands of England and Ireland should have been turned over to Hitler after he conquered the continent of Europe.

The Chinese Reds have made several unsuccessful attempts to conquer Quemoy. In 1949 the Reds attacked with troops and air force and occupied a corner of Quemoy. After a bitter two-day battle, the Reds were defeated. Half their invasion force was killed and the other half was captured. The Reds never tried another invasion.

In 1958 the Chinese Reds began heavy shelling and many appeasement-minded pundits in the United States counseled immediate retreat.

However, President Eisenhower went on television and told the world that America would stand firm in the Taiwan straits. With the help of U.S. amphibious equipment called "alligators" and aerial rockets called "sidewinders," the free Chinese won a brilliant military and psychological victory that has endured to this day.

Quemoy is immensely important to Taiwan and to the free world, not only militarily, but as a symbol of man's determination to be free. It is a fantastic military, financial, and psychological achievement for Taiwan to hold this little island in the very jaws of the Communist colossus.

In the days of the late, lamented cold war, the United States did not surrender any real estate to the Communists.

The years of detente, however, have been marked by retreat all over the world.

If Gerald Ford is reelected, the first few months of his second term will be busy ones, indeed, as Secretary of State Henry Kissinger proceeds with all the acts of appeasement he has postponed so as not to alienate the votes Mr. Ford needs for nomination and election. This includes the abandonment of Taiwan, the new giveaway treaty with Panama, and the "normalization" of relations with Cuban dictator Fidel Castro and with the Angola he conquered.

OVER A BARREL

According to Barron's, the U.S. is increasingly vulnerable to "crude blackmail."

In no uncertain terms, Frank Zarb, head of the Federal Energy Administration, said what for months has badly needed saying. "We have been living on borrowed time for much too long...if countries which sell us crude oil and petroleum products decide to stop the clock again, we'll be in for a crash refresher course in what life was like during the last embargo. It will be the history of 1974 all over again.

"But next time, we won't just have long gasoline lines. In fact, in some areas, we won't have any lines because we won't have all to real possibility...The any gasoline. And there will be other areas--regions when the generation of electricity depends on imported residual oil--where the lights may simply go out.

"I want to emphasize that this is not idle doomsday talk--it is an Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has the oil we need, and can be expected to make the most of the seller's market...I am personally convinced that we stand a disturbingly great chance of being subjected to another embargo."

On the latter account, to be sure, opinions differ. Everyone knows that OPEC is awash in crude, and, here and there, has been shaving the posted price. Yet nobody can deny the basic thrust of Zarb's remarks. Since the fall of 1973, despite the brave talk of Operation Independence, this country has grown more, rather than less, vulnerable to another oil embargo. Because of radical doctrinaires in Congress, whose pathological hatred of capitalism has blinded them to all other considerations and needs, the U.S. petroleum producers--and domestic output of oil and natural gas--remain hobbled by crippling price controls. Thanks to rabid ecologists and kindred spirits in the courts, alternative sources of energy, such as nuclear power and coal, have been systematically obstructed and thwarted. As a consequence, U.S. reliance on imported crude and products, notably from OPEC sources--along with the potential threat to national security--has not diminished but increased. Time was bought; time was squandered; time is running out.

The oil cartel, chances are, will be doing business soon at the same old extortionate stand. If so, this country will have nobody but itself to blame. Thanks to a majority in Congress, the Administration's original energy program, with emphasis on decontrolling oil and natural gas, ran into a stone wall of Congressional opposition and finally emerged last year-end unrecognizable and battered. Reluctantly approved by the President, the misnamed Energy Policy and Conservation Act, instead of freeing up petroleum prices, actually rolled them back. Coupled with the end of the oil depletion allowance, enacted earlier, the measure further reduced incentive to exploration and development. The majority in Congress also refused to lift the lid on domestic natural gas, thereby ensuring greater dependence on such notoriously unreliable and unfriendly suppliers as Algeria, or even looking to gas field in Russia's Siberia.

In such mischief making, the lawmakers have had lots of help, especially from so-called environmentalists. After their delay tactics which blocked the construction of the Alaskan pipeline for three years, raising its cost by 700 per cent, one would hope their obstructionism might have softened.

As the drift to the next emergency persists, things go from bad to worse. Last year domestic production of crude oil and natural gas declined by over 4 per cent and nearly 7 per cent, respectively. Now U.S. dependence on OPEC has increased from 25 per cent to 40 per cent of total foreign shipments.

Unless Congress corrects its energy policies, the U.S. is over a barrel.

WHO WILL WIN FEMALE VOTE IN 1976?

How are women likely to affect the 1976 election?

According to The Gallup Opinion Index based on the Gallup Poll, there are some clues in the history of their participation in voting, the candidates they have favored, their present political philosophy, and their interest in the coming election.

In the United States, and in nearly every other nation where polling makes comparison possible, the vote of women has been found to be somewhat more "right of center" than that of men. The voting pattern of women in presidential elections during the last quarter century, for example, has been comparatively conservative.

In 1952 and 1956, although President Dwight Eisenhower won both elections by healthy margins, his vote among women was considerably higher than among men.

Some political observers credited John F. Kennedy's election in 1960 to the vote of women who, they believed, were impressed with his good looks, charm and personality. Had only women voted in that election, however, Richard Nixon would have reached the White House eight years earlier than he finally did. Among women, Nixon won over Kennedy by a 51-49 per cent margin. The vote of men, 52-48 per cent in favor of Kennedy, was enough to elect the Democrat.

An exception in the theretofore conservative voting of women occurred in 1964. Women were apprehensive about Sen. Barry Goldwater's seemingly extreme political views, and for the first time in 20 years voted slightly more Democratic than men.

Although women would have elected Nixon over Kennedy in 1960, they gave Sen. Hubert Humphrey a slight edge over the former Vice President in 1968. The vote of men, however, went to Nixon. The third party candidacy of Gov. George Wallace, which was more popular with men than with women, was undoubtedly an important factor in the changed pattern of female voting in that election.

In 1972, women swung back to the conservative candidate. They voted for Nixon in exactly the same proportion as did the nation, giving the Republican candidate a 62-38 per cent landslide margin.

How are women likely to vote in 1976? Test elections during 1975 and so far this year are inconclusive.

True to form, throughout 1975 women tended to vote for the Republican candidate in trial heats pairing various candidates against each other. With the exception of Sen. Edward Kennedy, women supported both President Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan against all potential Democratic opponents tested.

So far this year, however, the female vote has moderated slightly, often splitting more evenly in Ford-Humphrey contests and more recently in the test elections pairing Ford against Jimmy Carter.

Perhaps part of the explanation of how women currently vote in test elections and how they may vote in November is this apparent contradiction: while a heavy plurality (42 per cent) of women, when asked to indicate their political position on a left-right continuum, say they are conservative, about the same number (44 per cent) say they are Democrats when asked which political party they are affiliated. Complicating the female political equation is the fact that fully one third of women, 32 per cent, consider themselves Independents. Winning over these uncommitted voters as well as their male counterparts remains an important goal in the plans of presidential aspirants.

Dr. Gallup offers indications--but the answer comes out in November, for sure.

THE TAX BITE

We've all read about how it takes four full months of steady work to pay Federal, state and local taxes. This is an entire one-third of a year that you work to pay taxes. Assuming that you work an eight-hour day, here's the way the Tax Foundation figures that your time is divided in terms of what your effort goes for. As you can see, taxes are the largest single item in the average family budget:

Tax Bite in the Eight-Hour Day–1976

Item	Hours & Minutes
Taxes, Total	2:39
Federal	1:41
State and local	:58
Food and beverages	1:05
Housing-Household operation	1:32
Clothing	:29
Transportation	:39
Medical care	:25
Recreation	:19
All other (1)	:52

(1) Includes consumer expenditures for such items as personal care, personal business, private education and savings.

Now the amazingly ironical part of this is that your taxes--heavy and backbreaking as they are--still don't come anywhere near paying the cost of government. Spendthrift policies have bankrupted state and local governments and forced others to take out the scalpel to trim back, despite the sharply increased tax burdens they've imposed on citizens.

While New York City and other units of local government have been forced to cut back, the Federal debt keeps climbing. It recently crossed $600 billion and it will be well over $700 billion in a little over a year.

But this is only the top of the iceberg--the part that shows. There are all kinds of "contingent" liabilities such as guarantees of Federal agencies' debts, and hosts of other commitments to finance programs for which no money has been raised. Taxpayers will ultimately have to finance these. And these programs always make future demands for funds that are far beyond the wildest dreams of their supporters when enacted--Social Security, Medicare, jobless benefits, disability, Federal pensions and all the subsidy programs for the poor, the ill-housed, underfed and downtrodden--something for everybody except the poor taxpayer. His ante is steadily upped but still the government has to go deeper and deeper into hock.

The promises to pay in the future in these proliferating Federal programs will make the actual totals paid out far, far greater than the debt that the government budget makers choose to include in their annual budget-balancing acts intended for public consumption. The plain fact is that the Federal government's real, non-fictional liabilities greatly exceed its assets. Obviously, nobody except a government with unlimited power to print money could "stay in business" under these circumstances.

Maybe this explains why the people aren't being fooled in the upcoming election by candidates seeking the "nomination based on experience in Washington and Congress"--look at their record in increased taxes and debt.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Toward a Labor Party?

Liberal Union Coalition bypasses Meany, challenges chief with Direct Alliance with Carter

NEW YORK— In the preliminaries, before the final round at the Garden, Jimmy Carter counted out the powerful political heavyweight George Meany, labor's chief of chiefs.

It could be that the nominee just didn't know enough about the labor movement to be frightened by Meany. So the candidate didn't run scared. Carter likes to be courted. Meany didn't court. Nor did he get himself photographed or positioned with the ex-governor. So Carter and company, who haven't hesitated to send word through their own staffers that they believe they can win without the sprawling COPE vote machine, arranged for the Georgian to be wooed by labor publicly.

For me, this was history in the making. At 9:25 a.m. Wednesday, Bastille Day, leaders of the nine strong union affiliates of Labor's Coalition Clearing House, emerged from the 20th-floor elevators marched through the improvised television alley to the guarded stairs to Carter's upper reaches.

These labor men, including the whirlwindish Jerry Wurf, national chief of the State, County and Municipal Employes, Leonard Woodcock, auto union leader, Red Smith, machinist president and Ntional Education Assn. prexy John Ryor, talked for some six million members.

Their presentation to the candidate was hastily arranged. George Meany wasn't consulted. This smashes precedent -- especially since his small convention staff didn't know of the big banana parley either.

Later, Bob Georgine, president of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades, who had been waiting for days in his hotel suite for a summons, also saw Carter -- separately.

Before Jerry Wurf went in he told a caller that he was going to talk about input on the vice presidency. There also was discussion of labor's liaison with the Carter presidential campaign camp. Such a political lifeline already was in the hands of the Machinists' affable Washington-based political director Bill Holayter, though he had been vetoed by COPE director Al Barkan.

The Coalition chiefs also inquired of Carter' plans for the number of labor men in the future Democratic National Committee executive group and on the specific role of labor in the Georgian's campaign for the White House.

With Carter that morning was another "unknown," his political director Landon Butler.The sit-down was good-humored. Nothing much was decided. Carter listened. Woodcock and Wurf talked. And then everybody ambled out. Later a high, and mighty chagrined, AFL-CIO officer growled, "Labor doesn't need a liaison ... George Meany is our liaison."

Well, obviously Jimmy Carter isn't buying liaisons wholesale. One of his New York managers asked, "Why should he? He's got all the labor power he needs."

Could be. This Wurf-Woodcock-Smith-NEQ Labor Coalition Clearing House has long been a political machine all its own.

Collectively its budget from the early days of the national AFL-CIO heacquarters neutrality -- which the Coalition broke in 1972 to back George McGovern -- has been budgeted at some $2 million. During the convention it had an elaborate set-up. There were headquarters, hospitality suites, daily caucuses for many of its 550 convention delegates, news tickers -- the whole thing primarily coordinated by Holayter.

At the Hotel Statler-Hilton, opposite the Garden, it set up an office, small staff, news ticker and operated under special security guard. On and off the floor the Coalition was for Carter all the way.

Meany wasn't. COPE had a suite and a room or two at the Hotel Americana. That's all. When the "mainstream" establishment's 300 labor leaders met Tuesday for lunch, national AFL-CIO secretary Lane Kirkland spent most of his time attacking Jerry Ford, predicting that the AFL-CIO itself would eventually endorse Carter. He was followed by those more interested in the New York labor effort to dump conservative Sen. Jim Buckley this fall. Mostly with Pat Moynihan.

So Carter's imperturbable and now legendary (after just a few months in the national press) braintruster, the South's neo-Jim Farley known as Charles Kirbo, decided not to wait until late August to be endorsed by labor.

They simply by-passed "the old man," one top Coalition Clearing House labor chief said.

"We don't want a fight with Meany," he added. "We are going to suspend this operation as of this convention. We are going back to a united labor war on Ford. But we in the Clearing House all know each other and, like the Swiss army, we can spring to it in any future campaign. After all, this is our second presidential drive."

No insider ever has counted out George Meany. But there's little doubt here he got the "shiv and shove" inside labor by militant labor chiefs impatient over Meany's keeping the massive AFL-CIO "neutral."

The aggressively liberal Labor Coalition Clearing House has many leaders who look longingly and confer often with, Europe's Social Democratic union chiefs who run their own national parties -- and who long ago won control of their governments on a line curving from London to Scandinavia to Bonn, Vienna and Singapore.

To them a national American labor party sounds enticing. As one of the Coalition chiefs said, "Why constantly buy a used car?"

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Reagan Forces May 'Steal' Ford Votes

By Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The epic struggle for the Republican presidential nomination is so close that Ronald Reagan's aides may resort to stealing delegates away from President Ford.

Some delegates are bound by law to support the President at least on the first ballot. Their votes belong to Ford, but their hearts belong to Reagan.

In secret strategy sessions, Reagan aides have toyed with the idea of asking these delegates to abstain as long as their state laws require them to honor the primary verdicts. This would prevent the President from ringing up an early-ballot victory. Then, in subsequent ballots, they could legally switch to Reagan.

For example, Ford won 25 delegates in North Carolina and 19 in Kentucky. In both states, they are obliged to vote for Ford only on the first ballot. The President's five Nevada delegates must vote for him on the first two ballots.

The Reagan strategists believe they could pirate several Ford delegates from these three states. If the delegates would sit out the first ballot or two, Reagan could wind up with their votes.

We discussed this plot with the President's political aides, who seemed concerned that it might succeed. They conceded that most of the Kentucky, Nevada and North Carolina delegates, who are legally committed to Ford, are really "Reagan men."

They might hold out on Ford and cast their ballots later for Reagan, the presidential aides acknowledged. The plot is an "immoral attempt to disenfranchise the voters," declared one Ford official.

To counter the move, the President's forces may ask the Republican National Committee to adopt a convention resolution compelling each state delegation to honor the primary results. The committee, since it is stacked with friends of Ford, might be able to block the Reagan strategy.

Sources inside the Reagan camp, meanwhile, acknowledged that the delegate-stealing scheme hasn't been abandoned.

Over-the-Counter Pot: In the paneled board rooms of some large corporations, the executives are casting covetous eyes on the multibillion-dollar marijuana market.

The secret estimates indicate marijuana users are now smoking $4 billion worth of pot per year. If marijuana were legalized, the market could soar to $10 billion annually.

This is enough pot to tempt the biggest of businesses. In anticipation of the day pot will be made legal, some alcohol and tobacco companies already are making production plans.

Government-sponsored tests at the University of Mississippi have produced an experimental marijuana five or six times stronger than the pot now sold on the streets. Tobacco companies, therefore, have set aside choice Southern land for future marijuana harvests, competent sources report.

Some firms have even registered trademarks on brand names, lifted straight from marijuana street lingo. Since trademarks cannot be issued for illegal products, the companies are using them temporarily on other obscure tobacco items.

Once marijuana is legalized, the firms can switch the trademarks, say, from cigars to pot.

The corporate executives are closely watching the status of legislation that would make marijuana legal to market. One corporate representative made a quiet trip to Washington recently to consult with experts on the law. He wanted to know what could be done to speed the legislation along.

Eight states have already decriminalized marijuana use; another 27 are considering similar legislation. There are also bills before the Senate and House which would decriminalize pot possession on the federal level. They will probably be taken up, according to our sources, after the presidential election.

Meanwhile, the marijuana question may become an issue in the election. Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter has already taken a stand in favor of decriminalization.

President Ford has stated his opposition to the idea but has indicated privately he has an open mind on the subject. Ronald Reagan is staunchly against decriminalization. If he gets the GOP nomination, he reportedly plans to attack Carter on the issue.

Footnote: The moving force behind the decriminalization effort, the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, is opposed to any corporate takeover of the marijuana market. Instead, the group advocates using tax revenues generated from marijuana sales for social purposes.

Radar Results: An unusual veterans' meeting was held recently in Framingham, Mass. Military men and civilians partially blinded by radar microwaves gathered from around the country.

The victims were led by Joseph Towne, known as the "Ralph Nader of microwaves," who came from California. The microwave visitors were seeking ways to expand favorable decisions by the Labor Dept. and Veterans Administration, which grant disability payments to those with microwave cataracts.

The problem: Cataracts from microwaves often don't develop until a decade or more after radar men and technicians leave their jobs.

Since the fall of 1973, despite the brave talk of Operation Independence, this country has grown more, rather than less, vulnerable to another oil embargo. Because of radical doctrinaires in Congress, whose pathological hatred of capitalism has blinded them to all other considerations and needs, the U.S. petroleum producers--and domestic output of oil and natural gas--remain hobbled by crippling price controls. Thanks to rabid ecologists and kindred spirits in the courts, alternative sources of energy, such as nuclear power and coal, have been systematically obstructed and thwarted. As a consequence, U.S. reliance on imported crude and products, notably from OPEC sources--along with the potential threat to national security--has not diminished but increased. Time was bought; time was squandered; time is running out.

The oil cartel, chances are, will be doing business soon at the same old extortionate stand. If so, this country will have nobody but itself to blame. Thanks to a majority in Congress, the Administration's original energy program, with emphasis on decontrolling oil and natural gas, ran into a stone wall of Congressional opposition and finally emerged last year-end unrecognizable and battered. Reluctantly approved by the President, the misnamed Energy Policy and Conservation Act, instead of freeing up petroleum prices, actually rolled them back. Coupled with the end of the oil depletion allowance, enacted earlier, the measure further reduced incentive to exploration and development. The majority in Congress also refused to lift the lid on domestic natural gas, thereby ensuring greater dependence on such notoriously unreliable and unfriendly suppliers as Algeria, or even looking to gas field in Russia's Siberia.

In such mischief making, the lawmakers have had lots of help, especially from so-called environmentalists. After their delay tactics which blocked the construction of the Alaskan pipeline for three years, raising its cost by 700 per cent, one would hope their obstructionism might have softened.

As the drift to the next emergency persists, things go from bad to worse. Last year domestic production of crude oil and natural gas declined by over 4 per cent and nearly 7 per cent, respectively. Now U.S. dependence on OPEC has increased from 25 per cent to 40 per cent of total foreign shipments.

Unless Congress corrects its energy policies, the U.S. is over a barrel.

WHO WILL WIN FEMALE VOTE IN 1976?

How are women likely to affect the 1976 election?

According to The Gallup Opinion Index based on the Gallup Poll, there are some clues in the history of their participation in voting, the candidates they have favored, their present political philosophy, and their interest in the coming election.

In the United States, and in nearly every other nation where polling makes comparison possible, the vote of women has been found to be somewhat more "right of center" than that of men. The voting pattern of women in presidential elections during the last quarter century, for example, has been comparatively conservative.

In 1952 and 1956, although President Dwight Eisenhower won both elections by healthy margins, his vote among women was considerably higher than among men.

Some political observers credited John F. Kennedy's election in 1960 to the vote of women who, they believed, were impressed with his good looks, charm and personality. Had only women voted in that election, however, Richard Nixon would have reached the White House eight years earlier than he finally did. Among women, Nixon won over Kennedy by a 51-49 per cent margin. The vote of men, 52-48 per cent in favor of Kennedy, was enough to elect the Democrat.

An exception in the theretofore conservative voting of women occurred in 1964. Women were apprehensive about Sen. Barry Goldwater's seemingly extreme political views, and for the first time in 20 years voted slightly more Democratic than men.

Although women would have elected Nixon over Kennedy in 1960, they gave Sen. Hubert Humphrey a slight edge over the former Vice President in 1968. The vote of men, however, went to Nixon. The third party candidacy of Gov. George Wallace, which was more popular with men than with women, was undoubtedly an important factor in the changed pattern of female voting in that election.

In 1972, women swung back to the conservative candidate. They voted for Nixon in exactly the same proportion as did the nation, giving the Republican candidate a 62-38 per cent landslide margin.

How are women likely to vote in 1976? Test elections during 1975 and so far this year are inconclusive.

True to form, throughout 1975 women tended to vote for the Republican candidate in trial heats pairing various candidates against each other. With the exception of Sen. Edward Kennedy, women supported both President Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan against all potential Democratic opponents tested.

So far this year, however, the female vote has moderated slightly, often splitting more evenly in Ford-Humphrey contests and more recently in the test elections pairing Ford against Jimmy Carter.

Perhaps part of the explanation of how women currently vote in test elections and how they may vote in November is this apparent contradiction: while a heavy plurality (42 per cent) of women, when asked to indicate their political position on a left-right continuum, say they are conservative, about the same number (44 per cent) say they are Democrats when asked which political party they are affiliated. Complicating the female political equation is the fact that fully one third of women, 32 per cent, consider themselves Independents. Winning over these uncommitted voters as well as their male counterparts remains an important goal in the plans of presidential aspirants.

Dr. Gallup offers indications--but the answer comes out in November, for sure.

XXX

THE TAX BITE

We've all read about how it takes four full months of steady work to pay Federal, state and local taxes. This is an entire one-third of a year that you work to pay taxes. Assuming that you work an eight-hour day, here's the way the Tax Foundation figures that your time is divided in terms of what your effort goes for. As you can see, taxes are the largest single item in the average family budget:

Tax Bite in the Eight-Hour Day--1976

Item	Hours & Minutes
Taxes, Total	2:39
Federal	1:41
State and local	58
Food and beverages	1:05
Housing-Household operation	1:32
Clothing	29
Transportation	39
Medical care	25
Recreation	19
All other (1)	52

(1) Includes consumer expenditures for such items as personal care, personal business, private education and savings.

Now the amazingly ironical part of this is that your taxes--heavy and backbreaking as they are--still don't come anywhere near paying the cost of government. Spendthrift policies have bankrupted state and local governments and forced others to take out the scalpel to trim back, despite the sharply increased tax burdens they've imposed on citizens.

While New York City and other units of local government have been forced to cut back, the Federal debt keeps climbing. It recently crossed $600 billion and it will be well over $700 billion in a little over a year.

But this is only the top of the iceberg--the part that shows. There are all kinds of "contingent" liabilities such as guarantees of Federal agencies' debts, and hosts of other commitments to finance programs for which no money has been raised. Taxpayers will ultimately have to finance these. And these programs always make future demands for funds that are far beyond the wildest dreams of their supporters when enacted--Social Security, Medicare, jobless benefits, disability, Federal pensions and all the subsidy programs for the poor, the ill-housed, underfed and downtrodden--something for everybody except the poor taxpayer. His ante is steadily upped but still the government has to go deeper and deeper into hock.

The promises to pay in the future in these proliferating Federal programs will make the actual totals paid out far, far greater than the debt that the government budget makers choose to include in their annual budget-balancing acts intended for public consumption. The plain fact is that the Federal government's real, non-fictional liabilities greatly exceed its assets. Obviously, nobody except a government with unlimited power to print money could "stay in business" under these circumstances.

Maybe this explains why the people aren't being fooled in the upcoming election by candidates seeking the "nomination based on experience in Washington and Congress"--look at their record in increased taxes and debt.

P.S. TO THE NEWS

QUEMOY

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

The old adage that coming events cast their shadows before them explains the announcement by the Ford administration that the United States is pulling its military advisers out of the Nationalist Chinese islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

This move is undoubtedly planned by our State Department as the forerunner of withdrawal of recognition from Taiwan after the November presidential election, in abject appeasement of the Chinese Reds.

The little island of Quemoy is freedom's farthest outpost in the Pacific, located just a little more than a mile off the coast of Red China. There, through binoculars, you can look out from the land of the free and get a long, close view of the home of the slave. You can even watch the Red soldiers patrolling the beaches of Mainland China.

One must either visit Quemoy or study the map to realize how this tiny island nestles into the shoreline and is surrounded on three sides by Mainland China. Quemoy is sometimes called the cork in the bottle of Amoy. In order to get there, you must make a hazardous flight in a plane, flying only about 500 feet above the sea to avoid Red China's radar.

Every part of the island is within range of Red artillery fire. On every odd-numbered day for the last decade, the Red Chinese have shelled Quemoy with artillery fire. For the last few years, the shells have been filled with propaganda leaflets instead of explosives, and only a direct hit is fatal.

Quemoy is completely built as an underground and camouflaged community. The impressive civic auditorium is carved out of solid rock, and has natural underground air conditioning and perfect natural acoustics. It can be transformed into a hospital in a few hours.

For 25 years, the Red China lobby in the United States has been insisting that Quemoy is indefensible and should be abandoned to Mainland China.

Red China devotees in the United States argue that the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu should belong to whomever controls Mainland China. That is about like saying that the offshore islands of England and Ireland should have been turned over to Hitler after he conquered the continent of Europe.

The Chinese Reds have made several unsuccessful attempts to conquer Quemoy. In 1949 the Reds attacked with troops and air force and occupied a corner of Quemoy. After a bitter two-day battle, the Reds were defeated. Half their invasion force was killed and the other half was captured. The Reds never tried another invasion.

In 1958 the Chinese Reds began heavy shelling and many appeasement-minded pundits in the United States counseled immediate retreat.

However, President Eisenhower went on television and told the world that America would stand firm in the Taiwan straits. With the help of U.S. amphibious equipment called "alligators" and aerial rockets called "sidewinders," the free Chinese won a brilliant military and psychological victory that has endured to this day.

Quemoy is immensely important to Taiwan and to the free world, not only militarily, but as a symbol of man's determination to be free. It is a fantastic military, financial, and psychological achievement for Taiwan to hold this little island in the very jaws of the Communist colossus.

In the days of the late, lamented cold war, the United States did not surrender any real estate to the Communists.

The years of detente, however, have been marked by retreat all over the world.

If Gerald Ford is reelected, the first few months of his second term will be busy ones, indeed, as Secretary of State Henry Kissinger proceeds with all the acts of appeasement he has postponed so as not to alienate the votes Mr. Ford needs for nomination and election. This includes the abandonment of Taiwan, the new giveaway treaty with Panama, and the "normalization" of relations with Cuban dictator Fidel Castro and with the Angola he conquered.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Toward a Labor Party?

Liberal Union Coalition bypasses Meany, challenges chief with Direct Alliance with Carter

NEW YORK— In the preliminaries, before the final round at the Garden, Jimmy Carter counted out the powerful political heavyweight George Meany, labor's chief of chiefs.

It could be that the nominee just didn't know enough about the labor movement to be frightened by Meany. So the candidate didn't run scared. Carter likes to be courted. Meany didn't court. Nor did he get himself photographed or positioned with the ex-governor. So Carter and company, who haven't hesitated to send word through their own staffers that they believe they can win without the sprawling COPE vote machine, arranged for the Georgian to be wooed by labor publicly.

For me, this was history in the making. At 9:25 a.m. Wednesday, Bastille Day, leaders of the nine strong union affiliates of Labor's Coalition Clearing House, emerged from the 20th-floor elevators marched through the improvised television alley to the guarded stairs to Carter's upper reaches.

These labor men, including the whirlwindish Jerry Wurf, national chief of the State, County and Municipal Employes, Leonard Woodcock, auto union leader, Red Smith, machinist president and Ntional Education Assn. prexy John Ryor, talked for some six million members.

Their presentation to the candidate was hastily arranged. George Meany wasn't consulted. This smashes precedent -- especially since his small convention staff didn't know of the big banana parley either.

Later, Bob Georgine, president of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades, who had been waiting for days in his hotel suite for a summons, also saw Carter -- separately.

Before Jerry Wurf went in he told a caller that he was going to talk about input on the vice presidency. There also was discussion of labor's liaison with the Carter presidential campaign camp. Such a political lifeline already was in the hands of the Machinists' affable Washington-based political director Bill Holayter, though he had been vetoed by COPE director Al Barkan.

The Coalition chiefs also inquired of Carter' plans for the number of labor men in the future Democratic National Committee executive group and on the specific role of labor in the Georgian's campaign for the White House.

With Carter that morning was another "unknown," his political director Landon Butler.The sit-down was good-humored. Nothing much was decided. Carter listened. Woodcock and Wurf talked. And then everybody ambled out. Later a high, and mighty chagrined, AFL-CIO officer growled, "Labor doesn't need a liaison ... George Meany is our liaison."

Well, obviously Jimmy Carter isn't buying liaisons wholesale. One of his New York managers asked, "Why should he? He's got all the labor power he needs."

Could be. This Wurf-Woodcock-Smith-NEQ Labor Coalition Clearing House has long been a political machine all its own.

Collectively its budget from the early days of the national AFL-CIO heacquarters neutrality -- which the Coalition broke in 1972 to back George McGovern -- has been budgeted at some $2 million. During the convention it had an elaborate set-up. There were headquarters, hospitality suites, daily caucuses for many of its 550 convention delegates, news tickers -- the whole thing primarily coordinated by Holayter.

At the Hotel Statler-Hilton, opposite the Garden, it set up an office, small staff, news ticker and operated under special security guard. On and off the floor the Coalition was for Carter all the way.

Meany wasn't. COPE had a suite and a room or two at the Hotel Americana. That's all. When the "mainstream" establishment's 300 labor leaders met Tuesday for lunch, national AFL-CIO secretary Lane Kirkland spent most of his time attacking Jerry Ford, predicting that the AFL-CIO itself would eventually endorse Carter. He was followed by those more interested in the New York labor effort to dump conservative Sen. Jim Buckley this fall. Mostly with Pat Moynihan.

So Carter's imperturbable and now legendary (after just a few months in the national press) braintruster, the South's neo-Jim Farley known as Charles Kirbo, decided not to wait until late August to be endorsed by labor.

They simply by-passed "the old man," one top Coalition Clearing House labor chief said.

"We don't want a fight with Meany," he added. "We are going to suspend this operation as of this convention. We are going back to a united labor war on Ford. But we in the Clearing House all know each other and, like the Swiss army, we can spring to it in any future campaign. After all, this is our second presidential drive."

No insider ever has counted out George Meany. But there's little doubt here he got the "shiv and shove" inside labor by militant labor chiefs impatient over Meany's keeping the massive AFL-CIO "neutral."

The aggressively liberal Labor Coalition Clearing House has many leaders who look longingly and confer often with, Europe's Social Democratic union chiefs who run their own national parties -- and who long ago won control of their governments on a line curving from London to Scandinavia to Bonn, Vienna and Singapore.

To them a national American labor party sounds enticing. As one of the Coalition chiefs said, "Why constantly buy a used car?"

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Reagan Forces May 'Steal' Ford Votes

By Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The epic struggle for the Republican presidential nomination is so close that Ronald Reagan's aides may resort to stealing delegates away from President Ford.

Some delegates are bound by law to support the President at least on the first ballot. Their votes belong to Ford, but their hearts belong to Reagan.

In secret strategy sessions, Reagan aides have toyed with the idea of asking these delegates to abstain as long as their state laws require them to honor the primary verdicts. This would prevent the President from ringing up an early-ballot victory. Then, in subsequent ballots, they could legally switch to Reagan.

For example, Ford won 25 delegates in North Carolina and 19 in Kentucky. In both states, they are obliged to vote for Ford only on the first ballot. The President's five Nevada delegates must vote for him on the first two ballots.

The Reagan strategists believe they could pirate several Ford delegates from these three states. If the delegates would sit out the first ballot or two, Reagan could wind up with their votes.

We discussed this plot with the President's political aides, who seemed concerned that it might succeed. They conceded that most of the Kentucky, Nevada and North Carolina delegates, who are legally committed to Ford, are really "Reagan men."

They might hold out on Ford and cast their ballots later for Reagan, the presidential aides acknowledged. The plot is an "immoral attempt to disenfranchise the voters," declared one Ford official.

To counter the move, the President's forces may ask the Republican National Committee to adopt a convention resolution compelling each state delegation to honor the primary results. The committee, since it is stacked with friends of Ford, might be able to block the Reagan strategy.

Sources inside the Reagan camp, meanwhile, acknowledged that the delegate-stealing scheme hasn't been abandoned.

Over-the-Counter Pot: In the paneled board rooms of some large corporations, the executives are casting covetous eyes on the multibillion-dollar marijuana market.

The secret estimates indicate marijuana users are now smoking $4 billion worth of pot per year. If marijuana were legalized, the market could soar to $10 billion annually.

This is enough pot to tempt the biggest of businesses. In anticipation of the day pot will be made legal, some alcohol and tobacco companies already are making production plans.

Government-sponsored tests at the University of Mississippi have produced an experimental marijuana five or six times stronger than the pot now sold on the streets. Tobacco companies, therefore, have set aside choice Southern land for future marijuana harvests, competent sources report.

Some firms have even registered trademarks on brand names, lifted straight from marijuana street lingo. Since trademarks cannot be issued for illegal products, the companies are using them temporarily on other obscure tobacco items.

Once marijuana is legalized, the firms can switch the trademarks, say, from cigars to pot.

The corporate executives are closely watching the status of legislation that would make marijuana legal to market. One corporate representative made a quiet trip to Washington recently to consult with experts on the law. He wanted to know what could be done to speed the legislation along.

Eight states have already decriminalized marijuana use; another 27 are considering similar legislation. There are also bills before the Senate and House which would decriminalize pot possession on the federal level. They will probably be taken up, according to our sources, after the presidential election.

Meanwhile, the marijuana question may become an issue in the election. Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter has already taken a stand in favor of decriminalization.

President Ford has stated his opposition to the idea but has indicated privately he has an open mind on the subject. Ronald Reagan is staunchly against decriminalization. If he gets the GOP nomination, he reportedly plans to attack Carter on the issue.

Footnote: The moving force behind the decriminalization effort, the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, is opposed to any corporate takeover of the marijuana market. Instead, the group advocates using tax revenues generated from marijuana sales for social purposes.

Radar Results: An unusual veterans' meeting was held recently in Framingham, Mass. Military men and civilians partially blinded by radar microwaves gathered from around the country.

The victims were led by Joseph Towne, known as the "Ralph Nader of microwaves," who came from California. The microwave visitors were seeking ways to expand favorable decisions by the Labor Dept. and Veterans Administration, which grant disability payments to those with microwave cataracts.

The problem: Cataracts from microwaves often don't develop until a decade or more after radar men and technicians leave their jobs.

Cannery workers strike; effect on food prices has not been determined

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — A harvesttime strike is under way by the workers who process most of the nation's canned tomatoes, apricots, peaches and fruit cocktail.

The walkout on Tuesday shut down 76 plants which handle 95 per cent of California's canning production. Up to 70,000 cannery workers are employed at the peak of the harvest season, which is now getting under full steam.

Agricultural leaders appealed to President Ford to intervene with a Taft-Hartley injunction for an 80-day cooling-off period.

Shortly after the walkout began, Director James F. Scearce of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service summoned both sides to Washington for talks Thursday.

"It is extremely important that every effort be made to settle this dispute as quickly as possible in order to avert the loss of food crops," Scearce said.

Ross Wurm of California Processors, Inc., said California produces all of the nation's canned apricots, cling peaches and fruit cocktail.

The state also turns out about 85 per cent of the tomatoes, including peeled tomatoes, tomato juice, catsup and tomato sauce, produced in the United States, Wurm said.

Cannery representatives said there is no way to estimate the immediate effects the strike will have on the prices of the affected vegetable and fruit products.

The processors, however, have larger supplies than usual sitting in warehouses and that could toughen their bargaining stand.

Freddy F. Sanchez, chief negotiator for the California Council of Cannery and Food Processing Unions, said he will go to Washington for the talks but that "in the interval, the strike will continue."

Among the major national food processors affected by the walkout are Del Monte, Gerber's, Hunt's and Libby's.

The Farm Bureau has estimated that a six-week strike could cause $1 billion in losses to California's agricultural industry — the nation's biggest farm state, which has already been hit with an estimated $1 billion in losses from a severe drought.

The 13 Teamster union locals involved have asked for increases of about $3 per hour over a three-year period. The canners say they have offered an additional 95 cents to $1.43 per hour, depending on the cost of living.

Wages have averaged $4.93 per hour, plus an additional 73 cents an hour in fringe benefits, under the contract which expired June 30.

School official critized for hiring policy remarks

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Remarks from University of Arkansas personnel over the affirmative action hiring procedures for women have created an atmosphere of distrust at the Fayetteville campus, the Commission on the Needs of Women said Tuesday.

The commission's remarks came in a letter sent to UA President Charles Bishop criticizing statements made about hiring minorities by UA Vice President and Provost Charles Leone.

Leone reportedly said the university had to "reach pretty far down into the barrell to bring minorities and women on board " according to the commission's letter.

It said those comments have brought "much concern and distrust about the leadership we could expect on this campus in meeting our legal and moral responsibilities."

UA administrative officials and commission members met last month to discuss complaints that only four of 108 decision-making positions within the university system are filled by women.

Outdoor play areas keep children safe and happy

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Luring your children to the backyard might be easy, but can you keep them there?

Yes, if interesting play materials are provided — at least there is less chance of boredom. And there's a bonus — the well-planned play yard can be a minivacation for parents.

A group of Chicago women, all mothers, who conduct a project, Parent as Resource, have published a number of little books on child-parent play. One book, "Backyard Vacations," has a number of good ideas for captivating the imagination of children in outdoor play.

The four women members of PAR travel over the United States to provide information to educational groups on parent-child play relationships. They also have conducted television programs on the subject.

An outdoor play area can be as inexpensively simple as large boxes, old tires, bricks, a long board, rope and some old pots and pans, the book points out. You don't need fancy equipment unless you want it. Low picket fencing may confine the area in an attractive way but it isn't really necessary.

For example, for a sandbox, fill an old tire with sand and add pots and pans, empty milk cartons, unbreakable utensils. A balance board may be made by placing a long board over it. A knotted climbing rope from a tree branch can be fun. A swing using two pieces of sturdy rope with a tire or board for a seat is another good idea.

An old barrel can become a tunnel by opening both ends or several boxes could be linked for a long tunnel.

Large packing boxes are ideal for playhouses or "pretend places" — grocery stores, school houses, fire stations or even ticket windows. A parent should help with projects which involve cutting window or door space with a knife.

"But parents really do not need to get involved much if the materials are safe. Sometimes it is a question of getting youngsters off to a good start," said Carolyn Haas, one of the PAR group, who have 15 children among them, "and we've tried practically everything we suggest with our own children," she added.

The little dollar book also tells how to conduct a backyard carnival, a pet show (any animal is welcome) neighborhood toy fair, a scavenger hunt. It also provides directions for various simple crafts.

Instructions for a cookout include simple formulae for a fire. One involves a large juice can, screening and a wire rack.

Ann Landers

Teenagers 'hobby' expensive to others

Dear Ann Landers: Some time ago I went to my daughter's house for dinner. She also invited her in-laws who brought their 15-year-old son. We had a pleasant evening but when I got home, I discovered $70 was missing from my wallet.

I phoned my daughter to tell her of the incident. I was certain the young boy had taken the money and wanted to warn her. She couldn't believe it and insisted I must have lost the $70 elsewhere.

Last evening, the in-laws were guests in my home. Again they brought the boy This morning I left for the store, thinking I had $14 in my purse. When I attempted to pay for a purchase, I discovered only small change. My wallet was empty. Now I'm sure that the boy is a thief.

In two weeks I will be entertaining the entire family at my home. The in-laws will be there, including, of course, the boy. How can I safeguard the purses of my guests? (The women usually put them on the bed or on the dresser.) I don't want to embarrass anyone. -- Up Against It

Dear Up: Engage a sitter (ostensibly as a maid) to help the ladies with their wraps. Ask her to remain full-time in the bedroom and keep an eye on the purses. (No details need be given.) That boy needs professional help - and soon. Let's hope someone has the courage to suggest it to his parents.

Dear Ann Landers: A nutty divorced woman moved next door. She has a son, six, and a daughter, seven. The son can't play with girls and the daughter can't play with boys, because their screwball mother says all the trouble in the world starts with sex and she doesn't want her children to "get involved."

What can we say to our youngsters when this woman orders them to stay away? -- K.T.B.

Dear K.T.B.: Tell your children they shouldn't go where they aren't wanted. No other explanation is necessary. But let's hope those unfortunate neighbor kids get enough wholesome exposure at school to offset the crippling effects of their sick mother.

Dear Ann Landers: yesterday my wife announced right after dinner, "I saved you $105 today." I was very eager to learn how she did it because this woman has always been a big spender. This is what she said:

"As you know, Harry, I always watch the paper for sales. Well, today I was really lucky. I bought three dresses at half price. They were originally marked $75. Can you imagine THREE $75 dresses for $105?"

I really got sore. The woman has a closet full of dresses that she bought at sales and she's never put them on her back. They don't fit right, they are too short or too long, or she is "waiting for the style to come back."

We are in debt up to our necks because my wife can't resist a bargain. I talked to our minister last year and he said, "Close all the charge accounts -- she's a charge-a-holic." Tell me what to do. -- Poorhouse Here I Come

Dear Poorhouse: Take the clergyman's advice -- NOW. You'd be doing your wife a favor. Some people need protection from themselves and compulsive buyers are at the top of the list.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents in coin to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Polly's Pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — The last few years I have been collecting table napkins and have over 1200 but what can I do with them? Now they are put away in dress boxes but I would like to have them out so people could see them. — ANNIE.

DEAR ANNIE — I presume these are cloth napkins and if so why not put some together, patchwork style, and make yourself a long hostess skirt. The same could be done to make bathroom or bedroom curtains. Placed side by side and crocheted or sewed together you could make a tablecloth or bedspread. I am sure the readers will be coming up with still other ideas, too. -- POLLY.

Cannery workers strike; effect on food prices has not been determined

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — A harvesttime strike is under way by the workers who process most of the nation's canned tomatoes, apricots, peaches and fruit cocktail.

The walkout on Tuesday shut down 76 plants which handle 95 per cent of California's canning production. Up to 70,000 cannery workers are employed at the peak of the harvest season, which is now getting under full steam.

Agricultural leaders appealed to President Ford to intervene with a Taft-Hartley injunction for an 80-day cooling-off period.

Shortly after the walkout began, Director James F. Scearce of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service summoned both sides to Washington for talks Thursday.

"It is extremely important that every effort be made to settle this dispute as quickly as possible in order to avert the loss of food crops," Scearce said.

Ross Wurm of California Processors, Inc., said California produces all of the nation's canned apricots, cling peaches and fruit cocktail.

The state also turns out about 85 per cent of the tomatoes, including peeled tomatoes, tomato juice, catsup and tomato sauce, produced in the United States, Wurm said.

Cannery representatives said there is no way to estimate the immediate effects the strike will have on the prices of the affected vegetable and fruit products.

The processors, however, have larger supplies than usual sitting in warehouses and that could toughen their bargaining stand.

Freddy F. Sanchez, chief negotiator for the California Council of Cannery and Food Processing Unions, said he will go to Washington for the talks but that "in the interval, the strike will continue."

Among the major national food processors affected by the walkout are Del Monte, Gerber's, Hunt's and Libby's.

The Farm Bureau has estimated that a six-week strike could cause $1 billion in losses to California's agricultural industry — the nation's biggest farm state, which has already been hit with an estimated $1 billion in losses from a severe drought.

The 13 Teamster union locals involved have asked for increases of about $3 per hour over a three-year period. The canners say they have offered an additional 95 cents to $1.43 per hour, depending on the cost of living.

Wages have averaged $4.93 per hour, plus an additional 73 cents an hour in fringe benefits, under the contract which expired June 30.

School official critized for hiring policy remarks

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Remarks from University of Arkansas personnel over the affirmative action hiring procedures for women have created an atmosphere of distrust at the Fayetteville campus, the Commission on the Needs of Women said Tuesday.

The commission's remarks came in a letter sent to UA President Charles Bishop criticizing statements made about hiring minorities by UA Vice President and Provost Charles Leone.

Leone reportedly said the university had to "reach pretty far down into the barrell to bring minorities and women on board " according to the commission's letter.

It said those comments have brought "much concern and distrust about the leadership we could expect on this campus in meeting our legal and moral responsibilities."

UA administrative officials and commission members met last month to discuss complaints that only four of 108 decision-making positions within the university system are filled by women.

Outdoor play areas keep children safe and happy

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Luring your children to the backyard might be easy, but can you keep them there?

Yes, if interesting play materials are provided — at least there is less chance of boredom. And there's a bonus — the well-planned play yard can be a minivacation for parents.

A group of Chicago women, all mothers, who conduct a project, Parent as Resource, have published a number of little books on child-parent play. One book, "Backyard Vacations," has a number of good ideas for captivating the imagination of children in outdoor play.

The four women members of PAR travel over the United States to provide information to educational groups on parent-child play relationships. They also have conducted television programs on the subject.

An outdoor play area can be as inexpensively simple as large boxes, old tires, bricks, a long board, rope and some old pots and pans, the book points out. You don't need fancy equipment unless you want it. Low picket fencing may confine the area in an attractive way but it isn't really necessary.

For example, for a sandbox, fill an old tire with sand and add pots and pans, empty milk cartons, unbreakable utensils. A balance board may be made by placing a long board over it. A knotted climbing rope from a tree branch can be fun. A swing using two pieces of sturdy rope with a tire or board for a seat is another good idea.

An old barrel can become a tunnel by opening both ends or several boxes could be linked for a long tunnel.

Large packing boxes are ideal for playhouses or "pretend places" — grocery stores, school houses, fire stations or even ticket windows. A parent should help with projects which involve cutting window or door space with a knife.

"But parents really do not need to get involved much if the materials are safe. Sometimes it is a question of getting youngsters off to a good start," said Carolyn Haas, one of the PAR group, who have 15 children among them, "and we've tried practically everything we suggest with our own children," she added.

The little dollar book also tells how to conduct a backyard carnival, a pet show (any animal is welcome) neighborhood toy fair, a scavenger hunt. It also provides directions for various simple crafts.

Instructions for a cookout include simple formulae for a fire. One involves a large juice can, screening and a wire rack.

Ann Landers

Teenagers 'hobby' expensive to others

Dear Ann Landers: Some time ago I went to my daughter's house for dinner. She also invited her in-laws who brought their 15-year-old son. We had a pleasant evening but when I got home, I discovered $70 was missing from my wallet.

I phoned my daughter to tell her of the incident. I was certain the young boy had taken the money and wanted to warn her. She couldn't believe it and insisted I must have lost the $70 elsewhere.

Last evening, the in-laws were guests in my home. Again they brought the boy This morning I left for the store, thinking I had $14 in my purse. When I attempted to pay for a purchase, I discovered only small change. My wallet was empty. Now I'm sure that the boy is a thief.

In two weeks I will be entertaining the entire family at my home. The in-laws will be there, including, of course, the boy. How can I safeguard the purses of my guests? (The women usually put them on the bed or on the dresser.) I don't want to embarrass anyone. -- Up Against It

Dear Up: Engage a sitter (ostensibly as a maid) to help the ladies with their wraps. Ask her to remain full-time in the bedroom and keep an eye on the purses. (No details need be given.) That boy needs professional help – and soon. Let's hope someone has the courage to suggest it to his parents.

Dear Ann Landers: A nutty divorced woman moved next door. She has a son, six, and a daughter, seven. The son can't play with girls and the daughter can't play with boys, because their screwball mother says all the trouble in the world starts with sex and she doesn't want her children to "get involved."

What can we say to our youngsters when this woman orders them to stay away? -- K.T.B.

Dear K.T.B.: Tell your children they shouldn't go where they aren't wanted. No other explanation is necessary. But let's hope those unfortunate neighbor kids get enough wholesome exposure at school to offset the crippling effects of their sick mother.

Dear Ann Landers: yesterday my wife announced right after dinner, "I saved you $105 today." I was very eager to learn how she did it because this woman has always been a big spender. This is what she said:

"As you know, Harry, I always watch the paper for sales. Well, today I was really lucky. I bought three dresses at half price. They were originally marked $75. Can you imagine THREE $75 dresses for $105?"

I really got sore. The woman has a closet full of dresses that she bought at sales and she's never put them on her back. They don't fit right, they are too short or too long, or she is waiting for the style to come back."

We are in debt up to our necks because my wife can't resist a bargain. I talked to our minister last year and he said, "Close all the charge accounts -- she's a charge-a-holic." Tell me what to do. -- Poorhouse Here I Come

Dear Poorhouse: Take the clergyman's advice -- NOW. You'd be doing your wife a favor. Some people need protection from themselves and compulsive buyers are at the top of the list.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents in coin to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

KC mayor still waits for apology

Kansas City Mayor Charles B. Wheeler, a Democratic candidate for U. S. Senate, is still waiting for his apology from Republican Gov. Bond over Bond's characterization of Wheeler as "Crazy Charlie."

Spokesmen for Bond say that quote, which appeared in a Kansas City newspaper, was misrepresented and taken out of context... But nonetheless Wheeler said Bond's alleged remark was in poor taste and a discrediting of Kansa City voters who have elected him mayor for 12 years.

Wheeler said he was waiting "on the edge of my chair" for a personal one-on-one apology from Bond fer the remark.

Arbuckle family holds annual reunion

BONNE TERRE— The 10th annual Arbuckle reunion was held July 10 and 11 with about 75 relatives attending.

The oldest member of the clan is Clifton Arbuckle of East Alton, Ill. The youngest is Mike Arbuckle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Arbuckle of Indianapolis, Ind.

The family traces its history back to the first Arbuckles who came from Ireland and Scotland to fight in the Revolutionary War.

Newcomers to the reunion were Jean (Arbuckle) Toney, her husband Max and daughter, of Crown Point, Ind. and Pat Wilson, who came to the reunion with her husband Ray from Owensboro, Ky., and Mrs. Eula Evans of Louisville, Ky., daughters of the late Mary (Arbuckle) York.

Recognized for perfect attendance records were Margaret and Almon Arbuckle of Louisville, Eulalia (Arbuckle) Daugherty and her husband Bob of Cromwell, Ky., and Mrs. Floy (Arbuckle) Gruen of Canalou.

Ginger Jones of Rolla won the centerpiece, an arrangement of red, white and blue candy sticks, which was made by Mrs. Gruen, her grandmother.

Next year's reunion will be held in Sikeston. It will also be observed as the silver wedding anniversary celebration for Della (Fish) Arbuckle, a former Lilbourn resident, and Orville "Red" Arbuckle, a former Canalou resident, who now live in Hoffman Estates, Ill.

The committee for next year's event will be Mrs. Janet (Fish) Levy of California, Leora (Arbuckle) Newman of Sikeston, Norma (Arbuckle) Busby of Arkansas and Mrs. Gruen.

Bond issue is discussed by Kiwanians

Rob Mitchell, president of the Sikeston Jaycees, and Jack Bloomer, manager of the Sikeston DeKalb AgResearch facility, appeared before the Sikeston Kiwanis Club Tuesday night at the El Capri Restaurant to discuss the proposed bond issue for the DeKalb facility.

Maurice Hixon, who was in charge of the regular club program, told about present generating plants of the Sikeston Board of Municipal Utilities. Hixon explained current generating capacity of the plants and indicated that some power has to be bought from other sources.

Herb Phelps was introduced to the club as a representative from the Kansas City engineering firm working with Sikeston Light & Water Co. on planning and construction of a new generating plant being proposed for Sikeston.

The new plant could use from 750 to 3,000 tons of coal a day and could employ up to 70 people in producing power to satisfy area needs until 1990.

The future plant site is 600-acre tract of land on Compress Road.

The club scheduled its next meeting for 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Reelfoot Lake Air Park Restaurant near Tiptonville, Tenn. Also, there will be a roundtable meeting for those unable to attend the Reelfoot Lake meeting.

Bond issue is discussed by Kiwanians

Rob Mitchell, president of the Sikeston Jaycees, and Jack Bloomer, manager of the Sikeston DeKalb AgResearch facility, appeared before the Sikeston Kiwanis Club Tuesday night at the El Capri Restaurant to discuss the proposed bond issue for the DeKalb facility.

Maurice Hixon, who was in charge of the regular club program, told about present generating plants of the Sikeston Board of Municipal Utilities. Hixon explained current generating capacity of the plants and indicated that some power has to be bought from other sources.

Herb Phelps was introduced to the club as a representative from the Kansas City engineering firm working with Sikeston Light & Water Co. on planning and construction of a new generating plant being proposed for Sikeston.

The new plant could use from 750 to 3,000 tons of coal a day and could employ up to 70 people in producing power to satisfy area needs until 1990.

The future plant site is 600-acre tract of land on Compress Road.

The club scheduled its next meeting for 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Reelfoot Lake Air Park Restaurant near Tiptonville, Tenn. Also, there will be a roundtable meeting for those unable to attend the Reelfoot Lake meeting.

Two killed, struck by lightning

July 21, 1926

Less and Lyman Gross and families returned to Sikeston the past week from Bakersfield, Calif., where they have been for the past two years. They drove through and were on the road 13 days, made necessary by car troubles and the car turning over with them one time.

Street Commissioner L. W. Ables has been very busy all last week fixing up the streets where the big ditch digger has been laying ditches. He has had a caterpillar tractor and a scraping machine out, leveling up and making them passable again.

Moore Greer and sons are anxious to find a five-months old female pointer pup that got away from them a few evenings ago. The pup is white with liver markings. If you know where this pup is, call Moore on the phone.

E. V. Howell bought the American Cafe from William Singleton, and assumed the management of it Friday. Howell sold out to Singleton last winter and bought a restaurant in Kennett, which he sold this spring, returning to Sikeston.

Morley -- Mesdames H. F. Emerson, Lutie Leslie and Mary Earles attended the quarterly W.M.U. meeting of Charleston Association which was held at Sikeston Tuesday.

Matthews -- Mr. and Mrs. Hugh May, who have been spending the summer in Morley with Mr. May's mother, spent the weekend here.

Pleasant Valley-- Harvesting grain through this section is almost complete and is a much better yeild than last year.

L. T. Pasley, Sikeston's oldest veteran of the war between the states, died at St. Francis Hospital in Cape Girardeau late Saturday of myocarditis and a complication of diseases. Mr. Pasley had been in ill health since last winter, when he became afflicted with a kind of abcess.

Major Woodrow Swancutt, pilot of the B29 Superfortress that dropped the atomic bomb in the historic test at Bikini atoll, received his primary flight training at the Parks operated Missouri Institute of Aeronautics in Sikeston.

Sikeston's postal employes, like those throughout the nation, went without their regular mid-month pay checks last week because congress involved in other legislation, has failed to pass the treasury-postoffice appropriation bill.

Wanda Lou Heffington, 15 years old, who lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John I. Heffington of near Matthews, was instantly killed and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ray Heffington was seriously injured when they were struck by lightning during a severe electrical storm Sunday. The tragedy occurred at a point about six miles south of Sikeston in New Madrid County and about 30 yards from Highway 60 at what is known as Champion Lane, a rural road.

Born to Lt. Commander Arch S. Russell, jr., and Mrs. Russell of Washington, D.C., a son on July 17. Commander Russell is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Arch S. Russell, sr., of Sikeston.

Dr. Lamb

What causes prostate trouble?

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column on prostate gland trouble, but it did not answer one question. If a person (who has been a diabetic since 1965 and is now 56) quit sex would he increase his prostate gland trouble, which is nearly nothing now? I go to the doctor once a year. In other words does lack of sex cause prostate gland trouble?

DEAR READER — There is a lot of confusion about the role of sexual activity in prostate gland trouble. That is partly because "prostate gland trouble" covers a lot of different problems.

The prostate gland forms secretions and when it is stimulated frequently it forms more secretions. Young men at the peak of their sex drive tend to form the most secretions. When the secretions accumulate, the gland becomes boggy or swollen from distention. In this condition it is ripe for bacteria to set up housekeeping and cause an acute infection. The infection in this instance is something like an abscess. It may cause chills and fever. When the bacteria are eliminated by nature's own defense mechanisms or by proper antibiotic treatment the infection and its symptoms disappear. It would seem that a normal amount of sexual activity helps to prevent this problem.

The acute infections have nothing to do with chronic prostate trouble that is more common in middle-aged and older men. The chronic inflammation may be associated with a variety of organisms but often the real cause of the inflammation is not known. It is doubtful that sexual activity either harms or helps such a condition.

There is now evidence that the enlargement of the prostate that causes obstruction of the bladder is related to the accumulation of one chemical type of testosterone, the male hormone. Having demonstrated the accumulation of this fraction of the hormone in the gland itself there is now hope that it will be possible to block its action or storage and in this way correct or prevent prostate enlargement. This might be done without affecting the function of the other fractions of male hormone. At present no medicine is available that will do this.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I want to know if a vasectomy causes prostate gland trouble? And once a man has had prostate surgery does than mean no more sex?

DEAR READER — No, a vasectomy will not cause prostate gland trouble. In fact vasectomies were originally done when the prostate was operated upon to try to prevent inflammation of the testicles as a complication of the procedure. All a vasectomy will do is prevent sperm cells from reaching the prostate. The gland will continue to function as it always did or would have without the vasectomy.

Most men can return to normal sexual function after prostate surgery. The type of surgery does make some difference.

What's the law?

Case of the flagrant flag

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Rodney viewed himself as a 100-per cent American -- a valuation that he arrived at for himself by himself.

Consequently, whenever he passed the State Capitol and saw the Confederate flag flying higher than Old Glory, he saw red as well as white and blue. In fact, he became so outraged one day that he started an action against the governor for flagrantly violating the courtesy due to the American flag.

"It's just down right un-American," he protested to a judge. "The Federal Code specifically provides that the flag of the United States should be flown above all other flags."

"Not in this state," was the answer. "In fact, it's not required in any state. What his country needs is fewer people telling us what this country needs."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order the governor to fly Old Glory above the Confederate flag?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the Federal Flag Code only advises as to flag customs, and contains no prohibitions or penalties.

Mississippi Queen is cruising along the Ohio

ON THE OHIO RIVER (AP) — The first overnight steamboat built in America in the last 50 years is gliding through its first passenger cruise and amazing even those longtime riverboat men who thought they would never see such a giant cruising along the Ohio River.

"She's like a Holiday Inn on a raft," smiled 75-year-old Fred Way, who began his career cleaning cuspidors on a towboat in 1919. "I never imagined there would be such a thing on the river. Who would have dreamed it?"

The Mississippi Queen, at 379 feet long, is nearly twice the length of the Betsie Ann, which Way piloted from 1925 to 1930.

Built entirely of steel construction, the Mississippi Queen lacks the classic look of her predeccesors, but she has been seen as a new found friend by the rivermen, many of whom admit they never thought they would see her like again.

"I'm just happy to be alive and able to sail on her," said Capt. Art Zimmer, who at 71 is helping to pilot the boat on its first trip with a full compliment of nearly 400 passengers. "Until four years ago, I thought we'd seen the end of the steamboat."

The idea has not come back unchanged. In fact, any riverboat gambler worth his branch water and bourbon might get lost wandering around the labryinth of hulls. There is a theater, a beauty salon, even a postage-sized swimming pool for those who want to do more than look at the water.

There are three bars, a king-sized dining room and several lounges. Even those old-time standards — the paddle wheel and the calliope — have grown on what the Delta Queen Co., officials call the largest steamboat ever built.

The Mississippi Queen, at 379 feet long, is nearly twice the length of the Betsie Ann, which Way piloted from 1925 to 1930.

Built entirely of steel construction, the Mississippi Queen lacks the classic look of her predeccesors, but she has been seen as a new found friend by the rivermen, many of whom admit they never thought they would see her like again.

"I'm just happy to be alive and able to sail on her," said Capt. Art Zimmer, who at 71 is helping to pilot the boat on its first trip with a full compliment of nearly 400 passengers. "Until four years ago, I thought we'd seen the end of the steamboat."

The idea has not come back unchanged. In fact, any riverboat gambler worth his branch water and bourbon might get lost wandering around the labryinth of hulls. There is a theater, a beauty salon, even a postage-sized swimming pool for those who want to do more than look at the water.

There are three bars, a king-sized dining room and several lounges. Even those old-time standards — the paddle wheel and the caliope — have grown on what the Delta Queen Co., officials call the largest steamboat ever built.

Suprise anniversary, birthday celebrated

Limbaugh were pleasantly surprised Sunday evening when Mr. and Mrs. James Henley, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Phillips arrived at their home with a chocolate cake to celebrate the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Henley and the birthday of Mrs. Jones.

Missouri Utilities drops late bill payment notices

To eliminate late notices on bills already paid, a new system has been developed by Missouri Utilities Co. for customers who want to pay by mail. In the Sikeston Service area, starting Thursday, payments should be mailed to the firm's data processing office in Charleston, P.O. Box 129.

Company officials say the system will directly apply payment to each customer's account and will all but eliminate those unwanted late notices when payment has already been made.

They added that the new service was made possible by more efficient use of the company's larger computer.

As always, the firm's local office in Sikeston, 126 E. Center St., and collectors in Blodgett, Vanduser, Crowder, Morehouse, Matthews and Canalou will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. for direct payments or any service work that is needed.

A Missouri Utilities spokesman made it very clear that the office in Sikeston will continue to provide all services that it has in the past.

Council is accused of breaking trash contract

SCOTT CITY — Mr. and Mrs. Orley Jackson, awarded the solid waste hauling contract for Scott City, met with the City Council during its regular session Monday night, and accused the council of breaking its contract by telling scores of angry citizens who protested the mandatory service that they can haul their own solid waste.

"If you make a rule, you're going to have to stick with it," Jackson said, noting that people are hauling trash in the trunks of automobiles and in pickup trucks. He said he originally was assured he would be the only residential trash hauler in the city and that the service would be mandatory to all residents.

Mrs. Jackson presented a list of 141 people who have notified the company they do not want its services, and Jackson said several customers who paid the $2.85 monthly fee three months in advance have requested a refund.

He contended that a commercial trash hauler here, Jack Holder, who also does hauling in Illmo and Chaffee, is allowing people to put their trash in his garbage truck, parked on Main street.

Police Chief Ralph Hays was ordered to put a stop to that practice, and Jackson was told Holder will be asked to buy a city permmit, insurance and otherwise conform with hauling regulations.

The council health committee will investigate those people not subscribing to the service, informing them of various regulations, and will study each case individually if necessary.

Jackson said if the city does not make the service compulsory, it should reimburse him the monthly fee for all residents not availing themselves of it.

After lengthy discussion, it was the council's consensus that, given time, the problem will cool off with citizens accepting the services. Most of the hard feelings that have been created by asking citizens to pay three months' billing in advance will taper off, council members said.

The trash hauling service has been the cneter of heated controversy for some months, both between Holder and Jackson, who vied for the contract, and among citizens who say mandatory service is an ingringement on their rights.

Here visitors will see demonstrations of authentic techniques from Missouri's past such as wood carving, soap making, candle making and quilting. They'll hear old- fashioned fiddle playing, ragtime piano and barber shop quartets. They can even compete for prizes in the on-stage mustache, beard, clothing and look-alike contests.

Prisons may be violating state laws

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Auditor George Lehr has reported that several operations of the state's prison industries and prison farms may be in violation of state law.

In a report issued Tuesday on the financial condition of the correction's division's working capital revolving fund for the two-year period that ended in June 1975, Lehr cited production of soybeans solely for open market sales as one of the violations.

Lehr also pointed out subsidized laundry service for the Missouri Training Center for Men in Moberly, failure to charge for special license plates provided members of the legislature and purchase of a video tape system as other possibile violations.

The working capital revilving fund is used for expansion and development of prison industries and prison farms, which include crop and livestock production, mental and furniture factories and a laundry operation.

Sr. Babe Ruth Stars back on winning track

The Sikeston Senior Babe Ruth League All-Stars bounced back from a narrow defeat Monday to belt the Jackson representative 11-1 in the District Tournament. The victory earned Sikeston another shot at Chaffee at 8 p.m. tonight. Chaffee has no losses and Sikeston one (to Chaffee) in the double elimination affair.

Sikeston hitters and pitchers had a field day at the hosts' expense in the Tuesday night game. Led by David Shell and Larry Jackson, who had three hits apiece, the Sikeston batters ripped out 14 hits while Kevin Lasters and Don Francis were limiting Jackson to four. Shortstop Dale Deal scored four times. Fifteen Jackson batters fanned, ten by the starter Lasters in the first five innings. Jeff Limbaugh and Bill Hampton each had two hits.

Sikeston scored three times in the first, added another in the third and then thre in the fourth for a seven-run lead before Jackson scored. In the bottom of the fourth Lasters walked Mark Dumey, only to have Brent Beussink triple to left center for a run. It was the lone time that Jackson even so much as threatened during the game.

The hard-throwing Lasters allowed only that single tally while working the first five frames. All four hits came off the Sikeston starter. Francis worked the final two frames and didn't allow a hit.

James Wichern picked up the loss for Jackson, going the route. His teammates erred three times behind him, but the righthander gave up all 14 Sikeston safeties and kept them from scoring in only two innings. Sikeston fielders were error-free during the contest.

Sikeston will probably go with either Glen Alexander, a no-hit pitcher in the tournament's first game, or Larry Jackson in tonight's game with Chaffee.

Rau and Dodgers nip Cardinals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Doug Rau, the Los Angeles left-hander, says the Dodgers' pitching is just now hitting it's peak.

"We're going to be much stronger this second half of the season," Rau said after flattening the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-2, on five hits Tuesday night to enable Los Angeles to pick up a game on Cincinnati in the National League West. The Reds still lead by six games.

The Dodgers and Cardinals were scheduled again this afternoon in their final meeting of the season. John Denny, 5-4, was to start for St. Louis, Don Sutton, 10-8, for Los Angeles.

Rau says that Manager Walter Alston's decision to go with five starters will be the telling point in the closing months of the season.

"We're all getting extra rest and I believe it will help us," Rau said after hurling his third straight victory and ninth in 15 decisions over-all. "We have a second-half type of staff. If we continue to pitch consistently, take our time and don't panic we can catch the Reds and make a race of it."

Tuesday night it was Dave Lopes' first home run of the season that produced the decisive run.

The Dodger second baseman homered in the second inning off loser Lynn McGlothen, 8-9, and it gave Los Angeles a 3-1 advantage. But the Cardinals picked up an unearned run in the third inning.

After that, though, the Cards were blanked on just two singles.

It was a play by Rau in the third inning that probably saved the game for the Dodgers.

The Cards had scored once, on Mike Anderson's sacrifice fly, and Don Kessinger was on first with only one out.

Ted Simmons then shot a vicious liner right back at Rau who gloved it and flipped to first to double up Kessinger.

"My hand went numb," Rau admitted, "and afterward, when I thought about it, my knees buckled. I'm just thankful I got my glove up in time.

"I can't say I was terrified seeing the ball come back at me. 'cause I never saw it."

Girls softball season ends

Karen Crugnale blasted two home runs and Elizabeth Pobst homered and tripled for undefeated Triangle to highlight the final night of regular-season play in the Sikeston Womens and Girls Softball League Tuesday night.

MINOR DIVISION

Pobst and Crugnale led Triangle's 21-hit attack as they ripped Mark's Food Mart 21-9 and completed the season undefeated to win the Minor Division championship. Only three of Triangle's 14 players failed to hit safely. Eddie Simpson was the winning hurler.

Three errors in the seventh inning by Rotary enabled Eddie Robinson to score the winning run and give Barkett's an 8-7 victory. Barkett's had scored twice in the bottom of the sixth to send the game into extra innings. Deanna Miller had two of Barkett's four hits. Cindy Wilson also had a pair of safeties as Rotary outhit the winners 6-4.

Linda King and Ginger Eudy had three hits apiece for Bridger as they downed Bank of Sikeston 17-7. Bridger scored in every inning as they made a winner out of hurler Sharon Boyd.

MAJOR DIVISION

Kiwanis scored twleve runs in the third inning to take a 24-1 lead, then held on to down Mid-Delta 24-13 in the lone Major Division game. Donna McLaughlin and Charla McGill each ripped three hits to lead Kiwanis, 17-hit assault.

Steward, Marks tied for 1st

Steward Steel pulled into a tie for first place in the Sikeston Fastpitch Softball League Tuesday night with a 5-3 victory over Marks Food Mart.

Webb Edwards drove in three runs in the game and Rick O'Donnell got the victory for Steward Steel. Both teams now have 11-4 records.

The Eagles scored ten runs in the second inning and went on to defeat Eby's 16-5. Doyle Stokes smacked a grand slam during the ten-run uprising. John Chessor was the winning pitcher.

Both AL games are close ones

A pair of close games, both in the American League, highlighted Tuesday evening's action in the Sikeston Little League at the complex. Teams are making up games rained out at the beginning of the season this week so that the league tournaments can start next week.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

First National Bank scored four runs in the first two innings and then held on to down Ryan Construction 5-4. Lloyd Brewer ripped three hits, including a first-inning triple, to lead First National's nine-hit attack, along with David Jones, who had three singles. John Gilbow outpitched Jimmy McPherson for the victory.

Nunnelee broke a 10-10 deadlock with two runs in the top of the sixth and defeated Fabick 12-11. Nunnelee jumped out to a 5-1 lead, but Fabick whittled away at the margin with four in the third, three in the fourth and two in the fifth to tie it.

Orlando Butler got the victory for Nunnelee and received the support of a 15-hit assault by his teammates. Deal had two doubles and two singles to lead the way. Brian Hindman, who was the loser, also went four-for-four for Fabick.

MUSIAL LEAGUE

The Daily Standard scored ten runs in the first as they blasted Collins Construction 21-7. Hutton got credit for the victory and was one of five players to get three hits.

Malone and Hyde scored three times in the bottom of the third to snap a 5-5 tie and defeat Flower Basket 8-5. Malone and Hyde scored their eight runs with the aid of only two hits. Ken Lathom was the winning pitcher.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

The Jaycees scored nine of their ten runs in the first three innings as they topped Security National Bank 10-7. Security National outhit the Jaycees 6-3, but the winners made the most of their safeties. Mark Statler had two of the Jaycees' three hits. Mike Hurley got the victory.

A&B Leasing overcame a 7-1 deficit in the third inning to defeat Lewis Furniture 12-8. A&B scored four in the fourth and six in the fifth enroute to the win. Steve Lawerence had three of A&B's eleven safeties.

Morehouse tourney continues

The Bank of Sikeston defeated Vanduser 13-7 in the Mens Division and Benton whipped Dexter IGA 15-4 in the Womens Division as the Morehouse Invitational Softball Tournament continued Tuesday night. Both games were loser's bracket contests.

Morehouse meets New Hamburg at 7:00 tonight in a womens game and Morley follows against Tanner Street Church of God at 8:30 in the mens tournament. Both of tonight's games are in the winner's bracket.

Alexander to play for ASU

JONESBORO, Ark. — Doyle "Glen" Alexander, a lefthanded pitcher from Sikeston, has become Arkansas State University's third 1976 baseball signee, according to ASU Coach Rich Johnson.

The 6-2, 185-pound Alexander currently owns three victories and 36 strikeouts for Sikeston's Elks Senior Babe Ruth team. He is also batting over .500, playing first base when he's not pitching.

Alexander, who has been a member of the Senior Babe Ruth All-Star team the past two summers, also lettered at Sikeston High in football one year and in basketball two years.

"We feel fortunate to have someone of Glen's caliber join our program," said Johnson. "We're looking forward to great things from him and believe he'll have a great baseball future at Arkansas State."

BIRTH RATE

NEW YORK (AP) — The Institute of Life Insurance says the birth rate in the United States in 1974 was at the lowest level ever recorded.

It says final statistics recently released by the Health Resources Administration show the 1974 rate of 14.9 births per 1,000 population was identical to that in 1973, the lowest on record.

Sr. Babe Ruth Stars back on winning track

The Sikeston Senior Babe Ruth League All-Stars bounced back from a narrow defeat Monday to belt the Jackson representative 11-1 in the District Tournament. The victory earned Sikeston another shot at Chaffee at 8 p.m. tonight. Chaffee has no losses and Sikeston one (to Chaffee) in the double elimination affair.

Sikeston hitters and pitchers had a field day at the hosts' expense in the Tuesday night game. Led by David Shell and Larry Jackson, who had three hits apiece, the Sikeston batters ripped out 14 hits while Kevin Lasters and Don Francis were limiting Jackson to four. Shortstop Dale Deal scored four times. Fifteen Jackson batters fanned, ten by the starter Lasters in the first five innings. Jeff Limbaugh and Bill Hampton each had two hits.

Sikeston scored three times in the first, added another in the third and then thre in the fourth for a seven-run lead before Jackson scored. In the bottom of the fourth Lasters walked Mark Dumey, only to have Brent Beussink triple to left center for a run. It was the lone time that Jackson even so much as threatened during the game.

The hard-throwing Lasters allowed only that single tally while working the first five frames. All four hits came off the Sikeston starter. Francis worked the final two frames and didn't allow a hit.

James Wichern picked up the loss for Jackson, going the route. His teammates erred three times behind him, but the righthander gave up all 14 Sikeston safeties and kept them from scoring in only two innings. Sikeston fielders were error-free during the contest.

Sikeston will probably go with either Glen Alexander, a no-hit pitcher in the tournament's first game, or Larry Jackson in tonight's game with Chaffee.

Rau and Dodgers nip Cardinals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Doug Rau, the Los Angeles left-hander, says the Dodgers' pitching is just now hitting it's peak.

"We're going to be much stronger this second half of the season," Rau said after flattening the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-2, on five hits Tuesday night to enable Los Angeles to pick up a game on Cincinnati in the National League West. The Reds still lead by six games.

The Dodgers and Cardinals were scheduled again this afternoon in their final meeting of the season. John Denny, 5-4, was to start for St. Louis, Don Sutton, 10-8, for Los Angeles.

Rau says that Manager Walter Alston's decision to go with five starters will be the telling point in the closing months of the season.

"We're all getting extra rest and I believe it will help us," Rau said after hurling his third straight victory and ninth in 15 decisions over-all. "We have a second-half type of staff. If we continue to pitch consistently, take our time and don't panic we can catch the Reds and make a race of it."

Tuesday night it was Dave Lopes' first home run of the season that produced the decisive run.

The Dodger second baseman homered in the second inning off loser Lynn McGlothen, 8-9, and it gave Los Angeles a 3-1 advantage. But the Cardinals picked up an unearned run in the third inning.

After that, though, the Cards were blanked on just two singles.

It was a play by Rau in the third inning that probably saved the game for the Dodgers.

The Cards had scored once, on Mike Anderson's sacrifice fly, and Don Kessinger was on first with only one out.

Ted Simmons then shot a vicious liner right back at Rau who gloved it and flipped to first to double up Kessinger.

"My hand went numb," Rau admitted, "and afterward, when I thought about it, my knees buckled. I'm just thankful I got my glove up in time.

"I can't say I was terrified seeing the ball come back at me, 'cause I never saw it."

Girls softball season ends

Karen Crugnale blasted two home runs and Elizabeth Pobst homered and tripled for undefeated Triangle to highlight the final night of regular-season play in the Sikeston Womens and Girls Softball League Tuesday night.

MINOR DIVISION

Pobst and Crugnale led Triangle's 21-hit attack as they ripped Mark's Food Mart 21-9 and completed the season undefeated to win the Minor Division championship. Only three of Triangle's 14 players failed to hit safely. Eddie Simpson was the winning hurler.

Three errors in the seventh inning by Rotary enabled Eddie Robinson to score the winning run and give Barkett's an 8-7 victory. Barkett's had scored twice in the bottom of the sixth to send the game into extra innings. Deanna Miller had two of Barkett's four hits. Cindy Wilson also had a pair of safeties as Rotary outhit the winners 6-4.

Linda King and Ginger Eudy had three hits apiece for Bridger as they downed Bank of Sikeston 17-7. Bridger scored in every inning as they made a winner out of hurler Sharon Boyd.

MAJOR DIVISION

Kiwanis scored twleve runs in the third inning to take a 24-1 lead, then held on to down Mid-Delta 24-13 in the lone Major Division game. Donna McLaughlin and Charla McGill each ripped three hits to lead Kiwanis, 17-hit assault.

Steward, Marks tied for 1st

Steward Steel pulled into a tie for first place in the Sikeston Fastpitch Softball League Tuesday night with a 5-3 victory over Marks Food Mart.

Webb Edwards drove in three runs in the game and Rick O'Donnell got the victory for Steward Steel. Both teams now have 11-4 records.

The Eagles scored ten runs in the second inning and went on to defeat Eby's 16-5. Doyle Stokes smacked a grand slam during the ten-run uprising. John Chessor was the winning pitcher.

Both AL games are close ones

A pair of close games, both in the American League, highlighted Tuesday evening's action in the Sikeston Little League at the complex. Teams are making up games rained out at the beginning of the season this week so that the league tournaments can start next week.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

First National Bank scored four runs in the first two innings and then held on to down Ryan Construction 5-4. Lloyd Brewer ripped three hits, including a first-inning triple, to lead First National's nine-hit attack, along with David Jones, who had three singles. John Gilbow outpitched Jimmy McPherson for the victory.

Nunnelee broke a 10-10 deadlock with two runs in the top of the sixth and defeated Fabick 12-11. Nunnelee jumped out to a 5-1 lead, but Fabick whittled away at the margin with four in the third, three in the fourth and two in the fifth to tie it.

Orlando Butler got the victory for Nunnelee and received the support of a 15-hit assault by his teammates. Deal had two doubles and two singles to lead the way. Brian Hindman, who was the loser, also went four-for-four for Fabick.

MUSIAL LEAGUE

The Daily Standard scored ten runs in the first as they blasted Collins Construction 21-7. Hutton got credit for the victory and was one of five players to get three hits.

Malone and Hyde scored three times in the bottom of the third to snap a 5-5 tie and defeat Flower Basket 8-5. Malone and Hyde scored their eight runs with the aid of only two hits. Ken Lathom was the winning pitcher.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

The Jaycees scored nine of their ten runs in the first three innings as they topped Security National Bank 10-7. Security National outhit the Jaycees 6-3, but the winners made the most of their safeties. Mark Statler had two of the Jaycees' three hits. Mike Hurley got the victory.

A&B Leasing overcame a 7-1 deficit in the third inning to defeat Lewis Furniture 12-8. A&B scored four in the fourth and six in the fifth enroute to the win. Steve Lawerence had three of A&B's eleven safeties.

Morehouse tourney continues

The Bank of Sikeston defeated Vanduser 13-7 in the Mens Division and Benton whipped Dexter IGA 15-4 in the Womens Division as the Morehouse Invitational Softball Tournament continued Tuesday night. Both games were loser's bracket contests.

Morehouse meets New Hamburg at 7:00 tonight in a womens game and Morley follows against Tanner Street Church of God at 8:30 in the mens tournament. Both of tonight's games are in the winner's bracket.

Alexander to play for ASU

JONESBORO, Ark. — Doyle "Glen" Alexander, a lefthanded pitcher from Sikeston, has become Arkansas State University's third 1976 baseball signee, according to ASU Coach Rich Johnson.

The 6-2, 185-pound Alexander currently owns three victories and 36 strikeouts for Sikeston's Elks Senior Babe Ruth team. He is also batting over .500, playing first base when he's not pitching.

Alexander, who has been a member of the Senior Babe Ruth All-Star team the past two summers, also lettered at Sikeston High in football one year and in basketball two years.

"We feel fortunate to have someone of Glen's caliber join our program," said Johnson. "We're looking forward to great things from him and believe he'll have a great baseball future at Arkansas State."

BIRTH RATE

NEW YORK (AP) — The Institute of Life Insurance says the birth rate in the United States in 1974 was at the lowest level ever recorded.

It says final statistics recently released by the Health Resources Administration show the 1974 rate of 14.9 births per 1,000 population was identical to that in 1973, the lowest on record.

It's Nadia vs. USSR tonight

MONTREAL (AP) — America's matchless male swimmers, chief harvesters of a medal crop that has put the United States on top in the XXI Olympic Games, must yield center stage again tonight.

Nadia will be back.

The Yankee swimmers, unbeaten and perhaps unbeatable, will be seeking their sixth and seventh gold medals in as many events. They're heavily favored in the 800-meter freestyle relay. And they had three of the four best times in qualifying for the 100 butterfly.

A world record, becoming something of a routine occurance, in the relay is a distinct possibility. But the worldwide television audience of a billion people may have to wait for the reruns to see it.

Nadia will be back.

And when tiny Nadia Comaneci appears, the rest of the Olympics all but halt, waiting and watching with the happy anticipation of another perfect performance from the pony-tailed Romanian schoolgirl who has captured the imagination of the world.

The 4-foot-11, 88-pound package of pert perfection, holder of the only three perfect 10 scores ever awarded in the Olympics, goes against the Russians in the finals of the women's all-around individual gymnastics.

It's Nadia vs. USSR tonight

MONTREAL (AP) — America's matchless male swimmers, chief harvesters of a medal crop that has put the United States on top in the XXI Olympic Games, must yield center stage again tonight.

Nadia will be back.

The Yankee swimmers, unbeaten and perhaps unbeatable, will be seeking their sixth and seventh gold medals in as many events. They're heavily favored in the 800-meter freestyle relay. And they had three of the four best times in qualifying for the 100 butterfly.

A world record, becoming something of a routine occurance, in the relay is a distinct possibility. But the worldwide television audience of a billion people may have to wait for the reruns to see it.

Nadia will be back.

And when tiny Nadia Comaneci appears, the rest of the Olympics all but halt, waiting and watching with the happy anticipation of another perfect performance from the pony-tailed Romanian schoolgirl who has captured the imagination of the world.

The 4-foot-11, 88-pound package of pert perfection, holder of the only three perfect 10 scores ever awarded in the Olympics, goes against the Russians in the finals of the women's all-around individual gymnastics.

Low prices on Scat Trac 60 and 70.

Barkett to head Cancer Society activities in 76-77 for Scott County

Phillip Barkett Jr., a Sikeston attorney, will head the 1976-77 activities of the Scott County unit of the American Cancer Society, according to an announcement by Addie Mae Jones, current president of the organization.

Barkett, who will assume his duties as president of the unit in August, is associated with the law firm of Dempster, Yokley, Fuchs & Barkett in Sikeston. He is active in the Sikeston Jaycees and serves on the parish council of St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church.

He is married to the former Jan Harper of Sikeston. The couple has one son, Phillip Barkett III, and lives at 820 Ladue Drive. Barkett is the son of Phillip Barkett Sr, 118 W. Wakefield St., and the late Mrs. Rosie Barkett.

Other new officers are: Tom Arnold of Benton, vice president; Harryette Campbell, 812 David Blvd., secretary; and Don Agnew, 13 Bel Air Drive, treasurer.

In addition to announcing the new officers, Miss Jones also reported that the Scott County unit received contributions of $10,315.42 during the 1976 fund-raising drive. She noted that this exceeded the goal of $7,000 by $3,315.42. The total included $1,712.15 in memorial contributions.

The largest project of the past year was the colon- rectal cancer screening program. Mrs. Keith Collins, chairman of that project which was conducted in April, reported that 5,740 test kits were distributed and 70 per cent of those were returned within one month, although some kits are still being returned.

Mrs. Collins reported that, thus far, Dr. Robert Ahlvin, pathologist at Missouri Delta Community Hospital who has been reading the tests on his own time, has found positive results in about one in every 50 persons who took the test.

Mrs. Collins emphasized, however, that not all of the tests checking out positive would be found to be due to cancer. She did note that because of the test findings, five people have already been treated for colon-rectal cancer.

About 225 volunteers assisted with the project. "I have never seen such willingness and dedication," Mrs. Collins said.

Local funds collected each year are used for research and to provide financial aid for cancer patients in Scott County.

The local unit also provides pads as dressing for cancer patients in the area.

In concluding her report on activities of the past year, Miss Jones expressed her gratitude to "everyone in Scott County that worked so hard for the cancer society and me."

Barkett to head Cancer Society activities in 76-77 for Scott County

Phillip Barkett Jr., a Sikeston attorney, will head the 1976-77 activities of the Scott County unit of the American Cancer Society, according to an announcement by Addie Mae Jones, current president of the organization.

Barkett, who will assume his duties as president of the unit in August, is associated with the law firm of Dempster, Yokley, Fuchs & Barkett in Sikeston. He is active in the Sikeston Jaycees and serves on the parish council of St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church.

He is married to the former Jan Harper of Sikeston. The couple has one son, Phillip Barkett III, and lives at 820 Ladue Drive. Barkett is the son of Phillip Barkett Sr, 118 W. Wakefield St., and the late Mrs. Rosie Barkett.

Other new officers are: Tom Arnold of Benton, vice president; Harryette Campbell, 812 David Blvd., secretary; and Don Agnew, 13 Bel Air Drive, treasurer.

In addition to announcing the new officers, Miss Jones also reported that the Scott County unit received contributions of $10,315.42 during the 1976 fund-raising drive. She noted that this exceeded the goal of $7,000 by $3,315.42. The total included $1,712.15 in memorial contributions.

The largest project of the past year was the colon- rectal cancer screening program. Mrs. Keith Collins, chairman of that project which was conducted in April, reported that 5,740 test kits were distributed and 70 per cent of those were returned within one month, although some kits are still being returned.

Mrs. Collins reported that, thus far, Dr. Robert Ahlvin, pathologist at Missouri Delta Community Hospital who has been reading the tests on his own time, has found positive results in about one in every 50 persons who took the test.

Mrs. Collins emphasized, however, that not all of the tests checking out positive would be found to be due to cancer. She did note that because of the test findings, five people have already been treated for colon-rectal cancer.

About 225 volunteers assisted with the project. "I have never seen such willingness and dedication," Mrs. Collins said.

Local funds collected each year are used for research and to provide financial aid for cancer patients in Scott County.

The local unit also provides pads as dressing for cancer patients in the area.

In concluding her report on activities of the past year, Miss Jones expressed her gratitude to "everyone in Scott County that worked so hard for the cancer society and me."

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, July 21, the 203rd day of 1976. There are 163 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1954, France surrendered North Vietnam to the Communists in an armistice agreement signed at Geneva.

On this date:

In 1588, British forces under Sir Francis Drake attacked the Spanish Armada in the English Channel.

In 1831, Leopold I was proclaimed King of the Belgians after separation of Belgium from Holland.

In 1861, the first major military engagement in the Civil War took place at Bull Run Creek in Virginia.

In 1918, in World War I, the Allies retook Chateau-Thierry in France as the Germans retreated.

In 1930, the U.S. Veterans Administration was established.

In 1974, fighting raged on Cyprus for the second day following an invasion by Turkev.

Ten years ago: U.S. astronauts Michael Collins and John Young ended a three-day orbital misson that included a space walk and two rendezvous with unmanned satellites.

Five years ago: East Pakistani rebels stormed three power stations in Dacca and bombed them out of commission, leaving the East Pakistani capital without electric power.

One year ago: The Russian Soyuz spacecraft landed safely in Soviet Central Asia after its rendezvous in space with an American Apollo craft.

Thought for today: The tragedy of old age is not that one is old, but that one is not young — Oscar Wilde, Irish poet and dramatist, 1854-1900.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, Benjamin Franklin, in Philadelphia, dismissed a British dispatch as nothing more than an offer of pardon upon Colonial submission to the British Crown.

An introduction to several characters

The world's largest frog is Africa's Goliath Frog, which is 12 inches long.

SUMMARY

We left Troy and her friend Louise speeding down the highway on their way to Toy's old home in Kentucky, where a strange telegram from her sister Jo has summoned her. On the way, Louise learns of Troy's three old maid sisters, Jo, Sam and Stacy, who still live there, and of a mysterious treasure buried before the Civil War by their grandfather.

The only clues to this still unfound mystery are the words "the rose" spoken by him as he died, thus causing the local people to call heir home Rainbow's End where the pot of gold must still be hidden. Louise also learns of of an old feud between Troy's father and his neighbors over some disputed boundary land which has never been settled, due to the deed to the farm also having been lost or hidden by her grandfather.

CHAPTER III.

Louise pulled up in front of an old, two-story red brick rambling Colonial style home. You could tell that at one time it had been quite a showplace, large and elegant, but now it looked tired, as if life had been too much for it. Attached to the south wing had been what looked like a mammoth greenhouse or conservatory, and as they both stared fascinated, a pigeon flew in through one of the broken panes in the roof. A porch went all the way across the front of the house, and the steps that had been built to lead up to it were in such a sad state of disrepair, slanting so badly to one side, they gave the impression that if you mounted them you might slide backwards and off, never to attain the floor of the porch. There was a magnificent stained glass window in the center of the second story and looking at this Louise said, "It must have once been glorious!"

"Yes," sighed Troy, tears gathering in her eyes, "and when Mama and Poppa were alive it was really something to see. When I was a little girl people would come in their horses and buggies from all over, and there would be grand and wonderful parties, the ladies all looking like flowers and the gentlemen so handsome. My sisters and I would sneak outside when it got past our bedtime and peep in the glass panes of the conservatory and watch them dance. In the center there's a beautiful old fountain of some Greek god that Grandaddy had shipped from Italy when he built the house, and everyone loved to whirl their partners around and round it. I use to think I couldn't live long enough to get to dance around that fountain."

"Did you?"

"Yes, one time. We whirled around and round and round that fountain till I was so dizzy — then he pulled me to a stop and holding me close he asked me to marry him." And wiping a tear from her cheek with the back of her hand as a child might, she smiled at Louise and said, "We didn't have too very long, but what we had was something special."

Sensing her distress, Ta Ta jumped over the front seat of the car and pressed himself against her. "It's all right silly," she scolded him, "I'm just getting nostalgic in my old age. Why don't you hop out while Louise and I get the bags out of the back." And with that they all three alighted and began to attend to the business at hand.

"I thought they'd all be running out to greet us by now," said Troy, strangely unsettled by the quiet. "They must not have been so anxious for me to come after all."

"Perhaps they've all gone in to town or to a neighbors," Louise suggested as she toiled up the precarious steps with her suitcase. "Look, they've left the front door open — surely they can't be far."

"Yoo hoo," hollered Troy as she stepped across the threshold. "Hey, where is everybody?"

"Look around, maybe they've left a note somewhere."

"I can't imagine what's wrong. Jo or Sam could be outside doing something, but Stacy's always in the house helping Bertha out."

"Who's Bertha?"

"Oh, I guess I didn't tell you. Bertha is the cook and housekeeper — has been for ages and ages. She's married to Amos, who is a grandson of Moses, remember the friend of grandaddy's that I told you about. He came back to the farm and stayed, and so have all his family from them on. This is most perculiar Louise, I hope nothing has happened."

Suddenly from outside came the sound of frenzied barking and excited voices.

"Good grief! I think Ta has routed an army." And turning back to the door she flung it open.

Coming across the lawn were two people as unlike as one could ever imagine. Like Jack Sprat and his wife, one was tall, lean and angular, while the other was short, fat and amply contoured. As they came nearer, it was something of a shock to Louise to find that the one she had thought was a man dressed in faded dungarees with a patched checkered shirt on, tail flapping loosely in the breeze, was in reality a woman, one who looked to be at least in her sixties, and judging from her countenance at the moment, one very much upset over something.

The other, shorter steps trying and failing to keep us with the tall woman's long strides, was also dressed in a pair of jeans, but her shirt was tucked neatly in, an her hair curled softly around a smiling face, which could never be mistaken for that of a man. Trailing behind and looking askance at the enraged poodle was an old Negro man, stooped and greyed with age and years of hard work, but with eyes that fairly twinkled as he caught sight of Troy standing in the doorway.

"Jo—Sam—Amos— thank goodness! I couldn't find you anywhere. Ta, will you please shut up!

"He's just like you Troy, he feels like God gave him a voice and intended for him to use it," said the older of the two women. "We weren't expecting you until tomorrow, but it's just as well you got here now so you can see for yourself some of the goin's on that have been happening around here."

"Give me a chance to say hello and give her a hug before you load her down with troubles." And the shorter, stouter version of Troy, immediately enveloped her in a bear hug and then gave her a resounding smack on the cheek. "And this must be that wonderful animal you keep writing us about." And before Ta Ta knew what was happening, he too was picked up and squeezed until he literally squeaked.

"Amos, I swear you never get a day older." And Troy warmly clasped the hand of the elderly man. "Where's Bertha and Stacy?"

"I started to tell you —" began Jo.

"We'll tell you as soon as we get inside and get something cool to drink," said Sam with a warning glance at her sister. "I know you're hot and I have an ice cold pitcher of lemonade and one of Bertha's jam cakes just waiting to be sliced."

"How wonderful," cried Troy and as they turned toward the house her eye fell on Louise still standing in the doorway.

"Lord, I've taken complete leave of my senses. Forgive me, Louise." To the others she apologized, "I'm so sorry, but in the excitement of seeing all of you I plain forgot. This is my friend Louise Adams, a card-playing buddy from home who very graciously volunteered to help me out with the driving and keep me company."

The thin woman, grey hair pulled back into a hard knot a the nape of her neck, stepped forward and offered a roughened hand, "I'm Jo, the older sister— anyhow, I find that's what the others usually introduce me as."

"And I'm Sam and just plain delighted to meet you," declared what might be Troy's double given a few more years, and she promptly gave Louise as warm a hug as she had given Troy and Ta.

"Then you must be Amos," said Louise, after disengaging herself from Sam's embrace. "I've heard all about you from Troy on the ride here, and I could hardly wait to see you and this fascinating house."

"Hmmph," came from Jo, "a few days here and you'll probably be just as anxious to see the last of us and Rainbow's End too."

"What an awful thing to say Jo." Sam turned to Louise. "Now don't you pay any attention to her, she's just upset because of what's been happening."

"What has been happening?" implored Troy.

"Come inside like Sam said, and I'll tell you all about it over the cake and lemonade. Might just as well serve the good with the bad." And with that pronouncement Jo began mounting the stairs, the others all following.

If Troy and Louise had pulled into the side road leading to Rainbow's End only ten minutes sooner, they would have witnessed an ancient Packard touring car being turned onto the main road and going in the opposite direction from which they had come. There were two occupants in the front seat of this splendid old vehicle. The driver, a small, frail-looking blonde, who to do her justice looked a good bit younger than the early 50's which Troy had confided to Louise that she was; and the other,an enormous black woman who more than filled the remainder of the front seat with her bulk.

"I declare Miss Stacy, if I gain any more weight I think I'll never get into this old car again. You all will just have to tie me to the top with some good stout rope like Miss Jo do when she haul some of that farm stuff." And she gave forth a mighty chuckle at the thought of herself riding atop the automobile. "Tell you the truth though, if Miss Sam don't quit that eatin, she gonna be right up there with me. Lawd, Lawd, if she ain't a sight! I'll bet you anything when we get home there'll be such a big slice cut outta that jam cake that there won't hardly be enough left for the rest of us for supper. Yes sir, she sure do love to eat!"

Stacy smiled affectionately at the woman sitting next to her. "Well, Bertha, she's always had you to keep her company in that department. Anyway, if you weren't such a good cook, it wouldn't be so hard to stay away from the table."

Beaming over the compliment she had just received, she answered, "Why Miss Stacy, you know I couldn't cook bad if I wanted to. Seems like the good Lord just say to me, 'Now Bertha, you know that pot of beans needs a little more salt in it.' or, 'Bertha, surely you ain't gonna serve that chicken lessin you soak her for two hours first in buttermilk.', and he's always right cause it sure do taste better when I've done all those things he say."

Giving another earthshaking chuckle she continued, "Anyways I ain't no 'Black Beauty,' but as long as I got cornbread and grits and fried chicken and sorghum molasses on the table, that Amos ain't never gonna look at another woman." And with that statement she settled back and smacked her lips. "You gettin hungry Miss Stacy?" All this talkin about food is just about to make my old tummy rumble."

"Heaven forbid," laughed Stacy, "buy yourself a candy bar when we get to town. How much shopping do you have to do anyway?"

"Not too much. Got to get a few groceries, some thread for that dress Miss Sam is making, and Miss Jo wants me to stop by the feed store and have Mr. Ambrose deliver some salt for the cattle lick next time he be out that way. It gonna take you long to do your business?"

"I hope not! I don't know why Jo couldn't have come herself."

"She say she taught Mr. Michael in Sunday School and she fraid he won't pay no mind to her. You know how boys feel about their Sunday School teachers. Besides that, I don't think she likes to drive much anymore, I don't think she sees too good. The other day I saw her trying to read a paper and she were holdin it way out in front of her and squintin up her eyes somethin fierce."

"Then why on earth is she so stubborn. Surely we could afford to have a telephone put in."

"She say no." There was a slight pause, and then, "Sure was a shame your old daddy losing all that money he had, it just plain killed him I think. Why, it wasn't anytime after the banks closed up that I looked at him one day and I told Amos the Mister was going down. He never had gotten over losing your mama, and then to have that happen just two years later, poor man he couldn't take it. He didn't have no heart attack Miss Stacy, his heart just shriveled up and died. Lucky day though when Miss Jo was able to figure out a way to keep the farm."

"I'm not so sure Bertha, sometimes I wonder if we wouldn't have all been better off if that weren't gone too. Then maybe we could live normal lives like other people."

"You normal Miss Stacy!"

Stacy leaned over, tears filling her eyes and patted the black hand that was resting in it's owners lap. "Well, if we are it's because you and Amos have kept us that way. I don't know what would have happened to us if you two hadn't always been there to help us out."

"You'd have gotten along just fine I speck. Your daddy and mama raised four good girls. Lawd, I can hardly wait to set my eyes on Miss Troy. It's been at least three years since she's been back and that's too long. I swear when I was a little girl on the place she was always thinkin just as well serve the good with the bad." And with that pronouncement Jo began mounting the stairs, the others all following.

If Troy and Louise had pulled into the side road leading to Rainbow's End only ten minutes sooner, they would have witnessed an ancient Packard touring car being turned onto the main road and going in the opposite direction from which they had come. There were two occupants in the front seat of this splendid old vehicle. The driver, a small, frail-looking blonde, who to do her justice looked a good bit younger than the early 50's which Troy had confided to Louise that she was; and the other,an enormous black woman who more than filled the remainder of the front seat with her bulk.

"I declare Miss Stacy, if I gain any more weight I think I'll never get into this old car again. You all will just have to tie me to the top with some good stout rope like Miss Jo do when she haul some of that farm stuff." And she gave forth a mighty chuckle at the thought of herself riding atop the automobile. "Tell you the truth though, if Miss Sam don't quit that eatin, she gonna be right up there with me. Lawd, Lawd, if she ain't a sight! I'll bet you anything when we get home there'll be such a big slice cut outta that jam cake that there won't hardly be enough left for the rest of us for supper. Yes sir, she sure do love to eat!"

Stacy smiled affectionately at the woman sitting next to her. "Well, Bertha, she's always had you to keep her company in that department. Anyway, if you weren't such a good cook, it wouldn't be so hard to stay away from the table."

Beaming over the compliment she had just received, she answered, "Why Miss Stacy, you know I couldn't cook bad if I wanted to. Seems like the good Lord just say to me, 'Now Bertha, you know that pot of beans needs a little more salt in it.' or, 'Bertha, surely you ain't gonna serve that chicken lessin you soak her for two hours first in buttermilk.', and he's always right cause it sure do taste better when I've done all those things he say."

Giving another earthshaking chuckle she continued, "Anyways I ain't no 'Black Beauty,' but as long as I got cornbread and grits and fried chicken and sorghum molasses on the table, that Amos ain't never gonna look at another woman." And with that statement she settled back and smacked her lips. "You gettin hungry Miss Stacy?" All this talkin about food is just about to make my old tummy rumble."

"Heaven forbid," laughed Stacy, "buy yourself a candy bar when we get to town. How much shopping do you have to do anyway?"

"Not too much. Got to get a few groceries, some thread for that dress Miss Sam is making, and Miss Jo wants me to stop by the feed store and have Mr. Ambrose deliver some salt for the cattle lick next time he be out that way. It gonna take you long to do your business?"

"I hope not! I don't know why Jo couldn't have come herself."

"She say she taught Mr. Michael in Sunday School and she fraid he won't pay no mind to her. You know how boys feel about their Sunday School teachers. Besides that, I don't think she likes to drive much anymore. I don't think she sees too good. The other day I saw her trying to read a paper and she were holdin it way out in front of her and squintin up her eyes somethin fierce."

"Then why on earth is she so stubborn. Surely we could afford to have a telephone put in."

"She say no." There was a slight pause, and then, "Sure was a shame your old daddy losing all that money he had, it just plain killed him I think. Why, it wasn't anytime after the banks closed up that I looked at him one day and I told Amos the Mister was going down. He never had gotten over losing your mama, and then to have that happen just two years later, poor man he couldn't take it. He didn't have no heart attack Miss Stacy, his heart just shriveled up and died. Lucky day though when Miss Jo was able to figure out a way to keep the farm."

"I'm not so sure Bertha, sometimes I wonder if we wouldn't have all been better off if that weren't gone too. Then maybe we could live normal lives like other people."

"You normal Miss Stacy!"

Stacy leaned over, tears filling her eyes and patted the black hand that was resting in it's owners lap. "Well, if we are it's because you and Amos have kept us that way. I don't know what would have happened to us if you two hadn't always been there to help us out."

"You'd have gotten along just fine I speck. Your daddy and mama raised four good girls. Lawd, I can hardly wait to set my eyes on Miss Troy. It's been at least three years since she's been back and that's too long. I swear when I was a little girl on the place she was always thinkin up something for us to do."

"Something to get into you mean," laughed Stacy, "Remember the day the two of you got whipped cause you slipped off to Old Annie's place and she gave you some of that moonshine her boys make?"

"Lawd yes, and Miss Troy got sick and threw up in the dining room all over that new carpet your mama was so proud of. I never seen your mama so mad."

"Yes, but Jo and Sam said Daddy went into his study after he spanked you both, locked the door and laughed and laughed, cause they listened at the keyhole and heard him."

"Well, I never did feel like his heart was in that lickin. It just didn't have the sting in there like the one's my maw gave me. Anyway, your daddy never could stay mad at you girls for very long—you were all too much like him and especially that Miss Troy."

They turned off into the main street of a small farming community and pulling up in front of Mr. Ambrose's feed store Stacy said, "I'll let you out here and then you can deliver your message before you get loaded down with any packages.—Listen Bertha, don't say one word to anyone about what's been going on out at the place, and don't take too long shopping. I'll park the car in front of the sheriff's and you can wait for me there."

Bertha opened the door and slowly and laboriously worked her way out of the front seat and onto the pavement.

"Don't worry none, I won't say anything, people think we gone crazy if I tell them all the goings on we been having." And waving good-bye she headed into the store.

Stacy shifted gears and pulled out into the street again. Coming to a stop sign she watched idly as two small girls played hopscotch, leaping about the squares of chalk they had drawn on the sidewalk, pigtails flopping to and fro and shrieks of laughter accompanying each jump.

What shame we have to grow up thought Stacy, wouldn't life be great if one's worse problem were simply to keep from stepping on a line, and then she smiled, perhaps our problems aren't so different after all, for once adult we stop worrying about stepping on lines, and instead start to worry about not stepping out of them. And with this silly, and, for her, profound thought, she pulled into a small parking lot at the side of the sheriff's office and taking a deep breath she opened the front door of the car.

Ford says voters will decide issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford says he was right to pardon Richard Nixon in the wake of the Watergate scandals and that the voters will decide if the pardon should be a campaign issue.

Ford was jovial, talking like he had the nomination of his party sewed up, as he held a news conference on the White House lawn Monday.

But Nixon's name and the word Watergate kept popping up, both at the news conference and at the nearby offices of the AFL-CIO, which cited the pardon as one reason in explaining why the labor federation will support Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter over Ford.

Pressed by reporters, Ford said his decision to pardon Nixon was best for the nation. And he added, "I would do it again."

Democrats have raised the pardon and the memory of the Watergate scandals in launching their campaign to take the White House.

Ronald Reagan last week condemned the Watergate comments made at the Democratic National Convention as "brutal." He also said, however, that the pardon could hurt Republicans in the fall if Ford is the party's nominee.

But Ford indicated it would be the voters who would ultimately pass judgment on his pardon of Nixon.

"I think the American people will make the decision, not me, myself, whether it will be an issue or not," Ford said.

"I decided to grant the pardon in the national interest. At that time, the United States was faced with serious economic problems and we were still involved in a long and difficult war in Southeast Asia. We could not be involved in the Nixon matter and concentrate fully on the more important matters. I decided in the national interest, I would do it again."

Ford also said he has sent Congress new Watergate reform legislation "which would further advance our efforts to restore public confidence in the integrity of all three branches of the federal government."

Stacy shifted gears and pulled out into the street again. Coming to a stop sign she watched idly as two small girls played hopscotch, leaping about the squares of chalk they had drawn on the sidewalk, pigtails flopping to and fro and shrieks of laughter accompanying each jump.

What shame we have to grow up thought Stacy, wouldn't life be great if one's worse problem were simply to keep from stepping on a line, and then she smiled, perhaps our problems aren't so different after all, for once adult we stop worrying about stepping on lines, and instead start to worry about not stepping out of them. And with this silly, and, for her, profound thought, she pulled into a small parking lot at the side of the sheriff's office and taking a deep breath she opened the front door of the car.

Ford says voters will decide issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford says he was right to pardon Richard Nixon in the wake of the Watergate scandals and that the voters will decide if the pardon should be a campaign issue.

Ford was jovial, talking like he had the nomination of his party sewed up, as he held a news conference on the White House lawn Monday.

But Nixon's name and the word Watergate kept popping up, both at the news conference and at the nearby offices of the AFL-CIO, which cited the pardon as one reason in explaining why the labor federation will support Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter over Ford.

Pressed by reporters, Ford said his decision to pardon Nixon was best for the nation. And he added, "I would do it again."

Democrats have raised the pardon and the memory of the Watergate scandals in launching their campaign to take the White House.

Ronald Reagan last week condemned the Watergate comments made at the Democratic National Convention as "brutal." He also said, however, that the pardon could hurt Republicans in the fall if Ford is the party's nominee.

But Ford indicated it would be the voters who would ultimately pass judgment on his pardon of Nixon.

"I think the American people will make the decision, not me, myself, whether it will be an issue or not," Ford said.

"I decided to grant the pardon in the national interest. At that time, the United States was faced with serious economic problems and we were still involved in a long and difficult war in Southeast Asia. We could not be involved in the Nixon matter and concentrate fully on the more important matters. I decided in the national interest, I would do it again."

Ford also said he has sent Congress new Watergate reform legislation "which would further advance our efforts to restore public confidence in the integrity of all three branches of the federal government."

Proposed constitutional change is said to be a 'power grab' by officials

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A proposed constitutional change allowing the legislature sole power to rescind state agency rules and regulations is a "power grab by the General Assembly," officials of Gov. Christopher S. Bond's administration said Monday.

Adoption of the measure would also remove the insulation of administrative rule makers from the pressures of professional lobbyists and result in a "lobbyist's field day" for revoking regulations detrimental to special interests, Lt. Gov. William Phelps said.

"I think the lobbyists are not able to influence our professional administrators," Phelps told a meeting of Bond and his department directors, "so the lobbyists could go to the General Assembly."

He predicted that state agency regulations in many sensitive and technical areas could be reversed if the legislature had sole authority to overturn them.

Voters will be asked in the Aug. 3 primary to decide whether the legislature should have such power. The proposal, which needs a majority to become part of the constitution, would allow the House and Senate by a simply majority vote to overturn an agency rule by resolution. Now any such resolution passed in the legislature requires the signature of the governor.

The measue will be one of seven suggested constitutional changes to be submitted to voters next month.

Both Phelps and Bond pointed out that such agencies as the Missouri Elections Commission, which issues rules on reporting of political campaign expenditurs and contributions, the state air and clean water commissions and the division of liquor control would have their regulations subject to such legislative action.

"Now when rules and regulations are adopted," Phelps said, "they are adopted by professional administrators and not by legislators running on partisan political tickets."

He noted that professional administrators are not as susceptible to pressures of professional lobbyists, who spent more than $320,000 during the recent 66-day legislative session to influence the decisions of lawmakers.

Backers of the proposal claim it would allow the legislature to take quick action halting "arbitrary" bureacratic regulations that have been issued by unchecked government administrators.

Dulcimer Workshop to begin August 8

Virgil Hughes, author of several books on the dulcimer and other folk instruments, will play some of these older homemade instruments during a concert-demonstration at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 8 in Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian Church, 723 Allen Blvd. The concert is free and open to the public.

The concert will kick off a week-long workshop by Hughes will lead Aug. 9-13 on the construction and playing of such instruments.

The dulcimer workshop classes are being sponsored by the Sikeston 4-H Club. A preregistration fee of $12 will be charged, and the number of participants will be limited. Kindergarteners through senior citizens may participate.

Individuals attending the classes usually start with a dulcimer, but one may build sitars, blalalikas, banjos, mandolins and many others. Kit prices vary from $2.45 for the limberjack to $68 for a folk harp.

Money paid in preregistration fees will be refunded or applied toward a higher cost money according to the kit selected. A small portion of the fee will be used for accomodations for

Virgil Hughes

Hughes, who heads Hughes Dulcimer Co. of Denver, Colo., a manufacturer of musical instruments and kits.

He says he became an authority on the dulcimer because a music teacher asked him, a science teacher, to conduct a demonstration on the science of a vibrating string. He used the dulcimer in the demonstration. Eventually, he went on to devote all of his time to building such instruments. How his firm has 46 employes devoted "to keeping up with my hobby."

His company sends people all over the United States to demonstrate the instruments and conduct workshops.

To preregister for the workshop or obtain further information, contact Mary Myers, 1007 Davis Blvd., Sikeston, Mo. 63801, telephone number, 472-0678.

Lasater is enrolled in science program

COLUMBIA — Allen S. Lasater of 501 Benton St., Sikeston, is one of 30 high school students enrolled in a National Science Foundation summer program in the College of Engineering at University of Missouri-Columbia. The program began June 7 and will continue through July 30.

Lasater's assigned research project is titled, Treatment of Wastewater from Coal Gasification Processes. His faculty adviser is Prof. Richard H. Luecke, department of chemical engineering.

The eight-week introduction to engineering on the UMC campus was made possible by an $18,230 NSF grant that paid the usual tuition and fees. Additional financial help was extended to qualified and deserving applicants.

The students—28 from Missouri and one each from Kansas and Puerto Rico—spend about 40 per cent of their time on introductory engineering courses and 60 per cent on research projects. They are also getting an introduction to computer programming and problem solving.

The program objective is to offer guidance and encouragement to talented high school students with the potential to become engineers and scientists. Those who satisfactorily complete the course are granted six hours of college credit by UMC.

This year, more than $1.9 million in National Science Foundation grants have enabled about 4,400 top high school students from 43 states and the District of Columbia to participate in these summer programs at U.S. universities and colleges. Their projects covered engineering, mathematics and the biological, physical and social sciences.

Proposed constitutional change is said to be a 'power grab' by officials

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A proposed constitutional change allowing the legislature sole power to rescind state agency rules and regulations is a "power grab by the General Assembly," officials of Gov. Christopher S. Bond's administration said Monday.

Adoption of the measure would also remove the insulation of administrative rule makers from the pressures of professional lobbyists and result in a "lobbyist's field day" for revoking regulations detrimental to special interests, Lt. Gov. William Phelps said.

"I think the lobbyists are not able to influence our professional administrators," Phelps told a meeting of Bond and his department directors, "so the lobbyists could go to the General Assembly."

He predicted that state agency regulations in many sensitive and technical areas could be reversed if the legislature had sole authority to overturn them.

Voters will be asked in the Aug. 3 primary to decide whether the legislature should have such power. The proposal, which needs a majority to become part of the constitution, would allow the House and Senate by a simply majority vote to overturn an agency rule by resolution. Now any such resolution passed in the legislature requires the signature of the governor.

The measue will be one of seven suggested constitutional changes to be submitted to voters next month.

Both Phelps and Bond pointed out that such agencies as the Missouri Elections Commission, which issues rules on reporting of political campaign expenditurs and contributions, the state air and clean water commissions and the division of liquor control would have their regulations subject to such legislative action.

"Now when rules and regulations are adopted," Phelps said, "they are adopted by professional administrators and not by legislators running on partisan political tickets."

He noted that professional administrators are not as susceptible to pressures of professional lobbyists, who spent more than $320,000 during the recent 66-day legislative session to influence the decisions of lawmakers.

Backers of the proposal claim it would allow the legislature to take quick action halting "arbitrary" bureacratic regulations that have been issued by unchecked government administrators.

Dulcimer Workshop to begin August 8

Virgil Hughes, author of several books on the dulcimer and other folk instruments, will play some of these older homemade instruments during a concert-demonstration at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 8 in Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian Church, 723 Allen Blvd. The concert is free and open to the public.

The concert will kick off a week-long workshop by Hughes will lead Aug. 9-13 on the construction and playing of such instruments.

The dulcimer workshop classes are being sponsored by the Sikeston 4-H Club. A preregistration fee of $12 will be charged, and the number of participants will be limited. Kindergarteners through senior citizens may participate.

Individuals attending the classes usually start with a dulcimer, but one may build sitars, blalalikas, banjos, mandolins and many others. Kit prices vary from $2.45 for the limberjack to $68 for a folk harp.

Money paid in preregistration fees will be refunded or applied toward a higher cost money according to the kit selected. A small portion of the fee will be used for accomodations for

Hughes, who heads Hughes Dulcimer Co. of Denver, Colo., a manufacturer of musical instruments and kits.

He says he became an authority on the dulcimer because a music teacher asked him, a science teacher, to conduct a demonstration on the science of a vibrating string. He used the dulcimer in the demonstration. Eventually, he went on to devote all of his time to building such instruments. How his firm has 46 employes devoted "to keeping up with my hobby."

His company sends people all over the United States to demonstrate the instruments and conduct workshops.

Lasater is enrolled in science program

COLUMBIA — Allen S. Lasater of 501 Benton St., Sikeston, is one of 30 high school students enrolled in a National Science Foundation summer program in the College of Engineering at University of Missouri-Columbia. The program began June 7 and will continue through July 30.

Lasater's assigned research project is titled, Treatment of Wastewater from Coal Gasification Processes. His faculty adviser is Prof. Richard H. Luecke, department of chemical engineering.

The eight-week introduction to engineering on the UMC campus was made possible by an $18,230 NSF grant that paid the usual tuition and fees. Additional financial help was extended to qualified and deserving applicants.

The students—28 from Missouri and one each from Kansas and Puerto Rico—spend about 40 per cent of their time on introductory engineering courses and 60 per cent on research projects. They are also getting an introduction to computer programming and problem solving.

The program objective is to offer guidance and encouragement to talented high school students with the potential to become engineers and scientists. Those who satisfactorily complete the course are granted six hours of college credit by UMC.

This year, more than $1.9 million in National Science Foundation grants have enabled about 4,400 top high school students from 43 states and the District of Columbia to participate in these summer programs at U.S. universities and colleges. Their projects covered engineering, mathematics and the biological, physical and social sciences.

Court reform, parochial aid among proposed amendments

By PAUL GROSSWILER
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — Seven proposed amendments to the state Constitution, on matters including parochial school aid and a court reorganization plan, will come before the voters on the Aug. 3 primary ballot.

Among the amendments, parochial aid and court revision are likely to be of the greatest public interest. Separation of church and state has been strengthened by the Supreme Court in recent years and the legislature has sought judicial reform for the past three years.

The proposed judicial amendment would abolish probate, magistrate and municipal courts by making them divisions of circuit courts. Those judges then would be renamed "associate circuit" judges.

The revision would give the Supreme Court greater administrative authority over the court system and hopefully allow more flexibility according to the amendment's sponsors.

One trial level of the court system would hear probate cases, traffic cases, misdemeanors, felonies and civil disputes. Judges could transfer to other jurisdictions to balance out caseloads. For example, circuit judges could sit temporarily on the appeals bench and magistrate judges could hear circuit level cases.

Most legislative concern was over expansion of the nonpartisan plan for selecting judges and a proposed requirement that all municipal judges be lawyers.

Circuit judges selected under a nonpartisan plan are recommended by a judicial commission and appointed by the governor. They are later retained or dismissed from their positions by public vote.

The judicial revision amendment would make it easier for voters in a circuit to adopt or discontinue nonpartisan selection of judges by allowing citizens to petition to put the question on the ballot rather than wait for the legislature to approve a change.

After the House balked at the entire revision plan because of the requirement that all municipal judges be lawyers, a House-Senate conference agreed to leave the qualifications of the municipal judges to the municipalities.

The proposed amendment to allow parochial and private schools to receive state aid for services for the handicapped, secular textbooks and students' transportation is the only amendment placed on the Aug. 3 ballot by initiative position.

The petition, sponsored by the Fairness in Education Committee, was the year's first completed initiative, but since its certification by the secretary of state's office in June the proposition has met a great deal of opposition.

A suit was filed by a church history professor challenging the proposition's legality because it seeks to amend more than one article of the constitution.

Fairness in Education has contended parochial and private schools have a right to state aid, although the state Supreme Court over the past few years has ruled that Missouri's required separation of church and state is stricter than that provided by the U.S. Constitution.

Opponents have said that state aid to parochial schools will open the door to church-state overlap and increase aid to parochial schools.

Constitutional provisions for separate schools for white and black students would be repealed by passage of Proposition No. 5.

The racial separation provisions have been void since the U. S. Supreme Court's Topeka school decision in 1954, but only state voters can remove something from the constitution.

Another proposition would, if passed, give the legislature authority to rescind administrative rules and regulations of executive agencies by concurrent resolution without presenting the resolution to the governor for approval.

Gov. Bond opposes the amendment because he says it would interfere too much with the executive branch. This is the only amendment Bond has taken a position on.

The Legislature's position has been that without the proposed authority over rule-making it will not be able to exert adequate legislative oversight of state agencies.

Constitutional provisions that require numbering election ballots and listing the numbers beside voters' names would be repealed by passage of Proposition No. 3.

The current "black patch" system has been criticized and the repeal intends to prevent abuse of secret ballots.

Another of the proposed amendments, Proposition No. 3, would allow the governing boards of counties and municipalities to issue industrial development-revenue bonds themselves instead of requiring voter approval.

This amendment would also allow counties to issue utility or airport revenue bonds if they are approved by the voters.

Revenue bonds are those which are not supported by taxpayers but rather ones which an industry that uses public-financed facilities would have to pay off. Industrial development revenue bonds now require voter approval.

The last amendment would delete the 25-year limitation on laws giving some tax relief on forest land.

When the tax relief agreements began to expire in 1970, 25 years after the Constitution was revised to allow them, many landowners began to cut down on their forest lands.

When the original tax relief began to expire in 1970 there were 543,000 acres classified as forest cropland. Now there are only 433,000 acres.

Hayti Heights may soon be 'legally clobbered out of existence'

HAYTI HEIGHTS — Officials and residents here are having to live with the idea that Hayti Heights may soon be legally clobbered out of existence.

It could happen if attorneys for the city are unsuccessful in appealing a ruling by a circuit court judge that the incorporation of this predominantly black town of 1,200 residents three years ago was illegal.

A Missouri appellate court is expected to rule on the matter by October.

"You can't worry too much about it. There are a lot of things to accomplish here and I try to do that. Life has got to go on," says Mayor David Humes.

"After all, they can't take up the water lines we put down or remove people's houses. The way I see it, even if Hayti Heights wasn't a municipality, it's still going to be a community of people."

Despite the uncertainty, activity at city hall has remained normal since Judge William Ragland of Caruthersville last May stayed execution of his circuit court order proclaiming the town's incorporation "null and void."

Perhaps the only noticeable effect of the order was a brief interruption last year of work on the city's $375,000 water system, which has since been completed.

Officials have turned their attention to getting a $1.5 - million sewer system for the Heights, and are hopeful of seeing results by 1977.

The city's problem in the courts stems from a suit by a woman who claims she was denied "due process" to object to attempts to incorporate the community in December 1972.

Virginia Cherry of Kennett, who owns 120 acres of farmland within the city limits, claims she wasn't notified prior to incorporation that her land was involved.

Hayti Heights includes 618 acres, with all but 184 acres consisting of farmland.

The city disputes Mrs. Cherry's claim, maintaining those affected were adequately notified by notices which appeared in a weekly newspaper at nearby Hayti.

But an attorney for Mrs. Cherry says she "had no way of knowing," since she lives at Kennett, "and nothing was published over there."

Ragland in his ruling listed, among other reasons, his view that the amount of land incorporated was excessive. Hayti Heights "doesn't have, nor in the reasonable future will have the ability to provide municipal services" to the area.

City officials, meanwhile say the farmland is necessary to growth, especially since the Missouri Highway Department has plans to build a by-pass to Missouri 84 to cross the area.

"We need the land. It's our hope for industry and commercial growth, and that's what we need to broaden our tax base," Humes said.

Most of Hayti Heights residents have incomes below the federal poverty level.

The town has no paved streets and the city parks consists of a few vacant lots strung together which the city rents on a yearly basis.

But officials point with pride to progress made in the community since the incorporation, including the water system, a program to rehabilitate some houses, transforming dirt streets into gravel streets, an increase in social workers and finally, acquisition of a fire truck that is to be delivered in a few days.

As for a park, the paving of streets and other projects, "This is something we hope later on to be able to do," says Humes.

As long as the incorporation is being considered in court, nothing can prevent Hayti Heights from functioning as a municipality.

"We're going to keep our minds on what we're doing. I'll leave the other things to the courts," the mayor said.

Dear Sir,

I am writing you about my son's death.

I am sending some letters stating the true facts of this case.

Now, this story was printed in one of your Missouri papers, but their story, as was given them was not complete and not true.

Now, would you please print the true story, as I am giving it to you.

On Marcy 27, 1976, Darrell Stidmon drove to Portageville, Mo. with his nephew Terry Wayne Knight, and Terry's wife Ann.

They drove past the house where Darrells ex-wife and Noah Creasey lived together. Darrell pointed out the house to Terry and Ann and told them that was here his wife lived with Noah Creasey.

Darrell then turned the car around and started back past the house. Noah Creasey appeared from across the road and started hitting Darrells car with a C.B. antenna. Darrell stopped the car and asked him what he was dong. Noah Creasey asked Darrell what he was doing driving down that street. Darrell said, "It's a free country and I'll drive down any street I want too." Noah Cresey said, "You won't be driving down any more damn streets," and he started hitting Darrell with the antenna. A gun appeared and Darrell was shot and killed.

On April 30, 1976 they had a hearing at New Madrid, Mo. Mr. Hal Hunter is the Prosecuting Attorney in that county. He did not subpoena the eye witnesses, Terry and Ann Knight. Terry is 18 years old and his wife is 17 and pregnant. Naturally they were frightened and would not appear voluntarily.

The charges were dismissed against Noah Creasey.

An my son is dead!

What kind of justice is it when a man in your state can commit murder and not even have to stand trial for it? What would you do if this were your child? Shouldn't someone in the Prosecuting Attorneys office tried to get the testimony of these eye-witnesses?

Please help me.

Yours in sorrow and
frustration,
Lucille Taylor
Mother of Darrell,

Osceola, Ark. Here is also a letter confirming the time of death...

Mrs. Lucille Taylor
P.O. Box 876
Osceola, Arkansas 72370

Dear Mrs. Taylor:

I cannot give you a copy of the autopsy report, but I can give you a report. The entrance of this bullet was behind the left ear and there was no exit. Penetrating wound to the left head penetrated the scalp ¾ of an inch above the left upper ear lobe and the entrance site was .3 inch in diameter. It directly penetrated the skull with the bone entrance measuring .4 inch in maximum diameter. It entered the brain at the left inferior posterior temporal lobe going through this lobe and exiting the brain through the right cerebellar lobe. It penetrated the right skull just slightly posterior to the right mastoid area, and the bullet was found in the margin of the right mastoid area in the soft tissue of the right side of the neck. The angle path of the bullet is from left to right and slightly posterior, approximating at a 5 degree angle. There is a small superficial abrasion on the lateral margin of the right eyebrow. This measured .5 inch in lenth and approximately .1 inch in diameter. There was a through-and-through penetrating superficial wound in the posterior left shoulder. The entrance site is just posterior to the left deltoid muscle and the exit site is three inches to the right of the entrance site. This penetrating wound was superficial and could be traced just beneath the skin. This bullet would not have caused any damage. The other bullet appeared to be a hard nosed type bullet of a .25 caliber.

I trust this is the information you desire.

Sincerely,
M. J. Osborne, M.D.
Mississippi County Coroner

The Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Sir:

Recently I read a letter written by Mr. Ellis Howlett which was printed in the newspapers of the 33rd Judicial Circuit, and I feel compelled to reply.

I was privileged to serve eight years in the Missouri General Assembly with Tony Heckemeyer, who is now a candidate for Circuit Judge in the 33rd Circuit.

Tony showed skill, ability, diligence, and drive. He has participated in the writing, amending, debating, and passing of hundreds of laws which are in the law books now, not to mention changes in the State and United States Constitution. In fact, the last proposed change in the United States Constitution was sent to and handled by the committee of which he was chairman.

I have observed Tony presiding over the General Assembly in the absence of the speaker at an age when some are just studying the law. In his elected office as Democratic Whip, his record of handling the problems of the Party, and the Governor's legislation on the floor is a tribute to our State.

He observed simultaneously on the Appropriations, Economics, and Fiscal Affairs committees, the three most powerful of the House, and at the same time was chairman of his own committee on Resolu tions.

Tony has been engaged in law practice for over three years, and his foundation and training add more years to that. He is a tough, conservative man, who has withstood the pressures of hard decisions, and a work load few can fully appreciate.

When the new changes from the Court Reform Act and other modernizing laws are implented it will take men like Tony Heckemeyer to make them work, and our courts will become more responsive to the people and their needs.

Yours truly,
DON HANCOCK

A gun appeared and Darrell was shot and killed.

On April 30, 1976 they had a hearing at New Madrid, Mo. Mr. Hal Hunter is the Prosecuting Attorney in that county. He did not subpoena the eye witnesses, Terry and Ann Knight. Terry is 18 years old and his wife is 17 and pregnant. Naturally they were frightened and would not appear voluntarily.

The charges were dismissed against Noah Creasey.

An my son is dead!

What kind of justice is it when a man in your state can commit murder and not even have to stand trial for it? What would you do if this were your child? Shouldn't someone in the Prosecuting Attorneys office tried to get the testimony of these eye-witnesses?

Please help me.

Yours in sorrow and
frustration,
Lucille Taylor
Mother of Darrell,

Osceola, Ark. Here is also a letter confirming the time of death...

Mrs. Lucille Taylor
P.O. Box 876
Osceola, Arkansas 72370

Dear Mrs. Taylor:

I cannot give you a copy of the autopsy report, but I can give you a report. The entrance of this bullet was behind the left ear and there was no exit. Penetrating wound to the left head penetrated the scalp ¾ of an inch above the left upper ear lobe and the entrance site was .3 inch in diameter. It directly penetrated the skull with the bone entrance measuring .4 inch in maximum diameter. It entered the brain at the left inferior posterior temporal lobe going through this lobe and exiting the brain through the right cerebellar lobe. It penetrated the right skull just slightly posterior to the right mastoid area, and the bullet was found in the margin of the right mastoid area in the soft tissue of the right side of the neck. The angle path of the bullet is from left to right and slightly posterior, approximating at a 5 degree angle. There is a small superficial abrasion on the lateral margin of the right eyebrow. This measured .5 inch in lenth and approximately .1 inch in diameter. There was a through-and-through penetrating superficial wound in the posterior left shoulder. The entrance site is just posterior to the left deltoid muscle and the exit site is three inches to the right of the entrance site. This penetrating wound was superficial and could be traced just beneath the skin. This bullet would not have caused any damage. The other bullet appeared to be a hard nosed type bullet of a .25 caliber.

I trust this is the information you desire.

Sincerely,
M. J. Osborne, M.D.
Mississippi County Coroner

The Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Sir:

Recently I read a letter written by Mr. Ellis Howlett which was printed in the newspapers of the 33rd Judicial Circuit, and I feel compelled to reply.

I was privileged to serve eight years in the Missouri General Assembly with Tony Heckemeyer, who is now a candidate for Circuit Judge in the 33rd Circuit.

Tony showed skill, ability, diligence, and drive. He has participated in the writing, amending, debating, and passing of hundreds of laws which are in the law books now, not to mention changes in the State and United States Constitution. In fact, the last proposed change in the United States Constitution was sent to and handled by the committee of which he was chairman.

I have observed Tony presiding over the General Assembly in the absence of the speaker at an age when some are just studying the law. In his elected office as Democratic Whip, his record of handling the problems of the Party, and the Governor's legislation on the floor is a tribute to our State.

He observed simultaneously on the Appropriations, Economics, and Fiscal Affairs committees, the three most powerful of the House, and at the same time was chairman of his own committee on Resolu tions.

Tony has been engaged in law practice for over three years, and his foundation and training add more years to that. He is a tough, conservative man, who has withstood the pressures of hard decisions, and a work load few can fully appreciate.

When the new changes from the Court Reform Act and other modernizing laws are implented it will take men like Tony Heckemeyer to make them work, and our courts will become more responsive to the people and their needs.

Yours truly,
DON HANCOCK
Member of the Missouri
General Assembly
Chairman Fees & Salaries Committee
Member, Judiciary Committee

Courage Is—Being afraid yet pushing on.

Demo's to fill 63 seats

Republicans have fewer candidates

By ANDY SMITH
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — Before the first voter enters a voting booth this November, the Democrats already will have won 63 seats in Missouri's House and six in the Senate, compared to 19 in the House and two in the Senate for the Republicans.

Republican failure to file primary candidates for more than a third of the 163 seats in the House automatically will give those seats to the Democrats, and will ensure that the Democrats maintain their majority in Missouri's General Assembly.

All members of Missouri House and half of the Senate — a total of 180 legislators — are up for re-election this year.

Even 50 per cent of the seats in November election — 90 out of the 180 — will be uncontested after the August primary.

In 1974, only 65 of the same 180 seats were uncontested.

This year also sees a high percentage of candidates unopposed in their primary races. A total of 144 candidates, including 54 incumbents, are unopposed in their party's primary.

In 1974, only 43 candidates ran unopposed in their primary.

A total of 474 candidates for the General Assembly have filed for the August 3 primary in a year when an unprecedented number of legislators either have retired or left the legislature to campaign for higher office.

Twenty-nine house members and eight senators will not seek re-election this year.

These include a number of legislative leaders, including House Speaker Richard Rabbitt, who is running for lieutenant governor and Senate President Pro Tem William Cason, who is running for governor.

In a year when so many incumbents are not running, the number of candidates filed for the General Assembly has dropped from 1974. Of the 474 candidates this year, 427 are running for the House and 47 for the Senate.

In 1974, a total of 546 candidates filed.

Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick, whose office handles candidate filings, said the decline in the number of candidates and the high proportion of uncontested races illustrate "a widespread public disinterest in the vital business of government affairs."

There will also be a heavy turnover in Missouri's delegation to the U.S. Congress, with four of Missouri's 10 representatives not seeking re-election.

Reps. James W. Symington of the Second District and Jerry Litton of the Sixth District are running for the U.S. Senate, while Rep. William L. Hungate, Ninth District, and Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan of the Third District are retiring.

A total of 79 candidates — 52 Democrats, 24 Republicans, and 3 Independents — are in the congressional races.

Four candidates, including incumbents Gene Taylor in the Seventh District, and Richard Ichord in the Eighth District, face no opposition in their primaries.

Many candidates for statewide office will also face little or no opposition in the August 3 primaries.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond, for example, will face Harvey F. Euge of St. Louis. Euge lost to Bond overwhelmingly in the 1972 Republican primary, when he received 3,467 votes to Bond's 265,467.

Lt. Gov. William Phelps and John Ashcroft, Republican candidate for attorney general, are both unopposed in their primaries.

Incumbents appear equally comfortable on the Democratic side. State treasurer James I. Spainhower has no opposition, while Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick faces James Askew in the Democratic primary. Askew ran against Spainhower in 1972, and received 87,743 votes to Kirkpatrick's 461,776.

Bond derided charges on offering 'bribe'

Gov. Christopher S. Bond last week derided charges by a state senator that the governor's office offered the legislator a "bribe" in return for his vote for the Equal Rights Amendment.

Sen. James Noland, R-Osage Beach, made the accusation that Bond's staff offered him support to get Noland's wife a state job as a workmen's compensaton hearing officer in return for his vote.

Bond said Noland has for several years sought employment with the state for either himself or his wife, and one member of Bond's staff said it was actually Noland who came to the governor's office with the proposal.

Noland said he came forth with his complaint in an effort to clarify his abortive attempt to resign from the Senate in 1975 to take a state job with the Department of Higher Education.

It was the above offer, Noland said, which prompted him to try to resign. Noland later returned to the Senate when it was found that he could not legally accept the job.

Noland's opponent in this year's election, Rep. James Russell of Lebanon, has threatened to make Noland's attempt to resign a campaign issue, Noland said.

Hearnes' to celebrate birthdays

JEFFERSON CITY — Warren and Betty Hearnes will celebrate their birthday once again with a dinner at the Ramada Inn at 7 p.m. Saturday — the 13th such celebration for the couple, who share the same birthday.

The first birthday celebration was held at the Hotel Governor in Jefferson City to help finance Hearnes' bid for election to his first of two terms as governor in 1964. The subsequent 11 birthdays were given to raise funds for Missouri's Democratic party.

Proceeds from this year's birthday party will be used to help finance the Hearns for Senate campaign. Tickets may be obtained by writing: Hearnes for Senate, Box 1343, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

Chaffee sets registration

CHAFFEE — Registration of junior and senior high school pupils who will attend Chaffee public schools this fall will be conducted Thursday and Friday, according to Reece Brown, superintendent of the R-2 School District.

All students must register at the main high school building as follows:

Seniors, Thursday at 8 a.m.

Juniors, Thursday at 9:30 a.m.

Sophomores, Thursday at 1 p.m.

Freshmen, Friday at 8 a.m.

Eighth grade, Friday at 9:30 a.m.

Seventh grade, Friday at 10:30 a.m.

If a pupil desires a locker for the coming school year, he must also bring along $1 for locker fee.

If the above schedule interferes with a prospective student's work, the student may register at 7 o'clock either morning or call to make arrangements to register at the high school.

Jupiter

Jupiter, the largest planet, has an equatorial diameter of 88,000 miles, 11 times that of the earth. Its mean distance from the sun is 480 million miles and it takes almost 12 earth years to complete a circuit of the sun. Jupiter's extremely rapid rotation gives it a day of just under 10 hours. A point on the Jovian equator moves at a speed of 22,000 miles an hour, as compared with 1,000 miles for a point on earth's equator.

Demo's to fill 63 seats

Republicans have fewer candidates

By ANDY SMITH
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — Before the first voter enters a voting booth this November, the Democrats already will have won 63 seats in Missouri's House and six in the Senate, compared to 19 in the House and two in the Senate for the Republicans.

Republican failure to file primary candidates for more than a third of the 163 seats in the House automatically will give those seats to the Democrats, and will ensure that the Democrats maintain their majority in Missouri's General Assembly.

All members of Missouri House and half of the Senate — a total of 180 legislators — are up for re-election this year.

Even 50 per cent of the seats in November election — 90 out of the 180 — will be uncontested after the August primary.

In 1974, only 65 of the same 180 seats were uncontested.

This year also sees a high percentage of candidates unopposed in their primary races. A total of 144 candidates, including 54 incumbents, are unopposed in their party's primary.

In 1974, only 43 candidates ran unopposed in their primary.

A total of 474 candidates for the General Assembly have filed for the August 3 primary in a year when an unprecedented number of legislators either have retired or left the legislature to campaign for higher office.

Twenty-nine house members and eight senators will not seek re-election this year.

These include a number of legislative leaders, including House Speaker Richard Rabbitt, who is running for lieutenant governor and Senate President Pro Tem William Cason, who is running for governor.

In a year when so many incumbents are not running, the number of candidates filed for the General Assembly has dropped from 1974. Of the 474 candidates this year, 427 are running for the House and 47 for the Senate.

In 1974, a total of 546 candidates filed.

Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick, whose office handles candidate filings, said the decline in the number of candidates and the high proportion of uncontested races illustrate "a widespread public disinterest in the vital business of government affairs."

There will also be a heavy turnover in Missouri's delegation to the U.S. Congress, with four of Missouri's 10 representatives not seeking re-election.

Reps. James W. Symington of the Second District and Jerry Litton of the Sixth District are running for the U.S. Senate, while Rep. William L. Hungate, Ninth District, and Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan of the Third District are retiring.

A total of 79 candidates — 52 Democrats, 24 Republicans, and 3 Independents — are in the congressional races.

Four candidates, including incumbents Gene Taylor in the Seventh District, and Richard Ichord in the Eighth District, face no opposition in their primaries.

Many candidates for statewide office will also face little or no opposition in the August 3 primaries.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond, for example, will face Harvey F. Euge of St. Louis. Euge lost to Bond overwhelmingly in the 1972 Republican primary, when he received 3,467 votes to Bond's 265,467.

Lt. Gov. William Phelps and John Ashcroft, Republican candidate for attorney general, are both unopposed in their primaries.

Incumbents appear equally comfortable on the Democratic side. State treasurer James I. Spainhower has no opposition, while Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick faces James Askew in the Democratic primary. Askew ran against Spainhower in 1972, and received 87,743 votes to Kirkpatrick's 461,776.

Bond derided charges on offering 'bribe'

Gov. Christopher S. Bond last week derided charges by a state senator that the governor's office offered the legislator a "bribe" in return for his vote for the Equal Rights Amendment.

Sen. James Noland, R-Osage Beach, made the accusation that Bond's staff offered him support to get Noland's wife a state job as a workmen's compensaton hearing officer in return for his vote.

Bond said Noland has for several years sought employment with the state for either himself or his wife, and one member of Bond's staff said it was actually Noland who came to the governor's office with the proposal.

Noland said he came forth with his complaint in an effort to clarify his abortive attempt to resign from the Senate in 1975 to take a state job with the Department of Higher Education.

It was the above offer, Noland said, which prompted him to try to resign. Noland later returned to the Senate when it was found that he could not legally accept the job.

Noland's opponent in this year's election, Rep. James Russell of Lebanon, has threatened to make Noland's attempt to resign a campaign issue, Noland said.

Hearnes' to celebrate birthdays

JEFFERSON CITY — Warren and Betty Hearnes will celebrate their birthday once again with a dinner at the Ramada Inn at 7 p.m. Saturday — the 13th such celebration for the couple, who share the same birthday.

The first birthday celebration was held at the Hotel Governor in Jefferson City to help finance Hearnes' bid for election to his first of two terms as governor in 1964. The subsequent 11 birthdays were given to raise funds for Missouri's Democratic party.

Proceeds from this year's birthday party will be used to help finance the Hearns for Senate campaign. Tickets may be obtained by writing: Hearnes for Senate, Box 1343, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

Chaffee sets registration

CHAFFEE — Registration of junior and senior high school pupils who will attend Chaffee public schools this fall will be conducted Thursday and Friday, according to Reece Brown, superintendent of the R-2 School District.

All students must register at the main high school building as follows:

Seniors, Thursday at 8 a.m.

Juniors, Thursday at 9:30 a.m.

Sophomores, Thursday at 1 p.m.

Freshmen, Friday at 8 a.m.

Eighth grade, Friday at 9:30 a.m.

Seventh grade, Friday at 10:30 a.m.

If a pupil desires a locker for the coming school year, he must also bring along $1 for locker fee.

If the above schedule interferes with a prospective student's work, the student may register at 7 o'clock either morning or call to make arrangements to register at the high school.

Jupiter

Jupiter, the largest planet, has an equatorial diameter of 88,000 miles, 11 times that of the earth. Its mean distance from the sun is 480 million miles and it takes almost 12 earth years to complete a circuit of the sun. Jupiter's extremely rapid rotation gives it a day of just under 10 hours. A point on the Jovian equator moves at a speed of 22,000 miles an hour, as compared with 1,000 miles for a point on earth's equator.
